Jackie Larsen Reigns

By WARREN SOKOLIS

DEXTER -- Jackie Larsen, Miss Dexter, was named Miss Stoddard County at the fair Thursday night.

Named second attendant was Janet King, Miss Bernie, and first attendant was Brenda Graham, Miss Bloomfield.

The 11 contestants were winners of various queen contests throughout the county during the past year.

Miss Larsen, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Larsen, is a senior at Dexter high school. Miss King, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James King, and Miss Graham, 17, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham.

The other two finalists were Sue Wills, Miss Advance, and Becky Larsen, Miss Dexter High School. Becky Larsen and Jackie Larsen are twin sisters. Crowning the queen was retiring Miss Stoddard County, Bonnie Blue.

Following the queen contest, the Little Miss Stoddard County contest was held. Winner was Lisa Curry, 5, Little Miss Dexter.

Lisa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felbert Curry. Also in the contest were Little Miss Bloomfield, Kathy Williams, and Little Miss Bernie, Donna Mitchell. Crowning the queen was retiring Little Miss Stoddard County, Claudia Davis.

Judges were Harold Dunn, Poplar Bluff, and James Beaird and Ray Clinton, both of Sikeston.

Winners of the parade float contest Thursday afternoon were Dexter FHA, first, and Bernie FHA, second, in the high school float competition, and Order of the Arrow, first, Rainbow girls, second, and Missouri Shorthorn Queen and the B and PW, tied for third, in the miscellaneous float division.

Prizes were $50 first, $25 second and $15 third in each division.

Tonight at 7 p.m. swine entries will be judged. At 8:30 p.m. the beef cattle will be judged, and at 9 p.m. the 4-H pig scramble will be held at the arena.

Saturday will be Dexter Homecoming Day with exchibits open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Judges To Pick Queen

From three to five out-of-town judges will choose the new Miss Sikeston tonight following the Sikeston - Charleston high school football game. The contest will take place on the platform on New Madrid street on the cotton carnival grounds.

The 22 contestants chosen to represent their homerooms in the high school will parade in formal wear across the stage, Sfc. A. B. Ledbetter, contest chairman, said.

Contestants will be judged on beauty, poise and carriage.

Hunter Phillips, chairman of the state tax commission in Jefferson City, will speak while the judges are making their decision.

Winner of the contest will receive in addition to her crown, trophy and bouquet of roses, gifts totaling about $300 in retail value from merchants.

The entrants are: Barbara Blacker, Sheila Berry, Sandy Clinton, Dixie Campbell, Sherry L. Frankum, Terry Crowe, Teresa Hammelman, Betty Hartlein, Cheryl Hurley, Charlotte Jones, Beth Marshall, Elizabeth Martin.

THE MATTHEWS fifth graders were hard at it in a game of kick ball played at recess. Sports have switched from summer to the fall season, which opened today.

Attorney Dawes Hurt in Mishap

George Dawes, attorney for the state highway department, was released Thursday from the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, following a single car accident Wednesday night.

He was returning from Lake Wappapello in fog, and failed to make a curve on highway PP, while traveling alone.

His car struck an embankment, knocking him unconscious. He regained consciousness and called Rolla Warren, who brought him to the hospital, where his injuries consisted of bruises on the head, arms and chest.

He is convalescing at his home, 718 Sikeston Blvd.

Buckners Store to Enlarge

Buckner-Ragsdale Co., 124 East Front, has acquired the building east of the present location, formerly occupied by the P.N. Hirsch Co. Both buildings will be remodeled and brought under one roof.

Floor space will be almost doubled when the remodeling is completed. The present Buckner Ragsdale Co. store is 40 feet by 120 feet and the old Hirsch building is almost the same size, Mrs. G. A. Lough, manager, secretary and treasurer, said today.

The added building will be used for the ladies department, Mrs. Lough said. Men's clothing, home furnishings and shoes will continue to be displayed in the present store building.

First step in the remodeling will be to add a new front to both buildings to make them look like one, Mrs. Lough said. The east wall of the present building will be removed.

The added section will be remodeled before the ladies department is moved into it. Then, remodeling will start on the present building, Mrs. Lough added.

The decision to enlarge present facilities was made for the convenience of the customers. Enlarging the store will enable the company to handle more goods, but essentially the same advertised products and quality merchandise will be offered, Mrs. Lough said.

J. A. Martin is assistant manager of the company.

The present store will remain open during remodeling.

Grand opening will be announced upon completion of the modernization.

Priest Adjusts to Duties, Differences

Three Weeks in Sikeston fresh from six years of studies in preparation for the priesthood in Rome is hardly time to get settled, much less to become accustomed to the difference in the way of life here and in Europe.

But one of Sikeston's newcomers is making the adjustment. He is the Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan.

Father Monaghan is a wavy-haired, Irishman of 25. He is the second oldest child in a family of three children in central Ireland. His father is a civil and electrical engineer in private practice in his home town of Mulligan, population 7,000. But the pace there, even though it has become more progressive with more industries, is still much slower than in America.

"People don't seem to relax here," the young priest commented.

Comparing observations here and in Ireland, Father Monaghan said one of the most noticeable differences is the number of denominations. Ireland is about 98 per cent Catholic. In Sikeston there are 27 different religious denominations and the Catholic population here is about three per cent, he commented.

It is a different situation here, he said. Even in Rome, the country is about 85 per cent Catholic, he continued.

The difference is not at all unpleasant to the new priest.

"I find the people here very friendly," he said. "People of all denominations have gone out of their way to treat me nice."

Father Monaghan is a secular priest. He is working with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Walter J. McGrane in conducting the business of St. Francis Xavier parish.

"My duties?" he questioned in noticeable brogue. "I teach the children religion in St. Francis Xavier school, grades 1 through 8, and I teach juniors and seniors at St. Mary's high school one hour each day Monday through Thursday in Charleston.

"I don't know if it would be correct to call the teaching my

Jail Breaker Nabbed

Scott County deputy sheriff Eddie Michael arrested a man wanted by Howell County authorities on charges of burglary and larceny and breaking jail Thursday night near a service station at Miner Switch, east of Sikeston.

The arrested man, Thomas G. Sarver, 23, was returned to Howell County authorities today, Michael said.

Sarver was caught entering a service station in West Plains. He broke jail and escaped in a pickup truck.

The truck was recovered in Morehouse Monday night.

Michael said Sarver admitted being wanted by Howell County authorities and told of breaking jail in Washington state after questioning Thursday night.

Sarver was questioned by Michael after a service station attendant call authorities to check out Sarver as a suspicious person. He was on foot when the arrest took place.

Hearnes Plays Down Role in Fishing Case

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today he took no part in stopping the arrest of William R. Clark, chairman of the Public Service Commission, for allegedly interfering with the action of two conservation agents Sept. 4.

"What's all this talk about a 'fix?' " he asked at his press conference. "I don't touch conservation agents ever."

Hearnes said he talked with Clark about the situation and Clark called the story false. Asked if he had given Clark a dressing down about the matter, the governor said "That's between him and me."

Two agents, Paul Plank and Harris White, checked two youths fishing from a private boat dock on the Lake of the Ozarks. One was Glennon T. Moran Jr., son of a former supervisor of liquor control. Moran Sr. now is the Democratic candidate for St. Louis County prosecutor.

The boys did not have licenses to fish and they later paid fines for fishing without licenses.

The agents said Clark was "belligerent, definitely aggressive" in his efforts to stop the arrest of the youths. Plank quoted Clark as saying "You're both pretty stupid. The whole damned outfit (Conservation Commission) is pretty stupid."

The agents reported the incident to William E. Towell, conservation director, and he relayed the report to Hearnes.

Fisher Named To Bank Post

ST. LOUIS -- Jack G. Butler, president of Bank of St. Louis, today announced the election of Leo A. Fisher to a newly created position of chairman of the executive committee.

Fisher investor, bank and planter, formerly served as chairman of the Missouri highway commission and the Missouri - Illinois Bi - State Development agency. He was a founder of the Bank of Bloomfield, and has served as one of its directors and officers since 1939.

Fisher's additional board members include General Bancshares Corp.; Bank of St. Louis; Bank Building and Equipment Corp.; Lindbergh Bank; Transit Casualty Co.; Juniper Oil and Gas Co., Denver; and Sikeston Compress and Warehouse company.

His club memberships include The Noonday club, The St. Louis club, Missouri Athletic club, the Media club; Forest Hills Country club, Sunset Hills Country club, The Riviera Country club in Coral Gables, Fla., and The Garden of the Gods clubs in Colorado Springs.

New Presbyterian Minister

After a vacancy of almost one year, the Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church will have a new pastor. He is the Rev. Lindy M. Cannon.

The new minister and his family will move into the parsonage at 910 North Kingshighway Monday and will occupy the pulpit Oct. 2.

He replaces the Rev. F. Edward Watson, who resigned Oct. 15, 1965, to accept a Presbyterian pastorate in Marshall, Tex.

Cannon and his wife, Anna, have one child, a son, James, one.

The new minister comes to Sikeston from Mexico, Mo., where he served as assistant minister at the First Presbyterian Church since September of 1964. He was ordained to the ministry in June, 1965.

Mr. Cannon was born in Greenville, N.C., and moved to Texas after World War II. Mrs. Cannon was born in San Antonio, Tex. She is one of six children, and her father is the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Mineral Wells, Tex.

Both Mr. Cannon and his wife graduated with bachelor of arts degrees from Austin College in POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

NATIONAL 4-H WEEK

National 4-H Week will be observed throughout the country from Sept. 24 through October 1. Recognition will be given to the achievements of nearly 2.25 million boys and girls who participate in the activities of some 96,000 4-H clubs. Organized for young people between the ages of 9-19 in cities, towns, suburbs and rural areas, 4-H clubs, carry on a wide variety of educational projects in civic and community service, in farming, homemaking and personal improvement. The goal of developing good citizenship is foremost in all 4-H programs. This goal is emphasized by the national 4-H emblem which stands for the pledge: "My Head to clearer thinking, My Heart to greater loyalty, My Hands to larger service, My Health to better living, for my club, my community and my country."

By this pledge, millions of young boys and girls have developed character, talents and skills which today make them better citizens. National 4-H Week deserves the support, cooperation and respect of every citizen.

CURTAIN RISING

For all intents and purposes, the 1966-67 Broadway season begins on Thursday (Sept. 22), with the presentation of Edward Albee's A Delicate Balance.

THE FABULOUS INVALID is in better shape than most of its relatives want to admit. Variety lists 38 dramatic and musical stage shows with definite dates for the 1966-67 Broadway season.

Certainly the initial interest centers about a show called A Delicate Balance. It is the work of Edward Albee, who has been represented on the New York stage in each of the past five years and who is certainly one of the most serious, prolific -- and sometimes trying -- of playwrights now practicing. Hardly of secondary interest is the fact that it will be the first presentation reviewed for the N. Y. Times by Walter Kerr, a benefice from the late Herald Tribune.

Kerr is, in the words of the man he succeeds, Stanley Kauffman, "the most famous, widely admired critic in the country." But Kerr has not always been the most influential critic. The man who hurls the critical thunderbolts is always the man who writes for the N.Y. Times, or at least so runs the devout belief of Shubert Alley.

THE BROADWAY AMBIENCE of recent years has not been exactly great. As a general rule, the hits have been imports from Britain, and that goes to an extent for musicals. Kerr observes: "Certainly the theatre needs to shake itself awake, by whatever means; certainly we need to reexamine not only the nature of words but the nature of our natures if we are to end the sleepwalking that has been our reflexive activity for so long." (You find your way out of Kerr sentences, as Robert Benchley once remarked in another context, by looking for the moss which grows on the north side of the words.)

Yet in any dollars and cents view, all this doomsaying doesn't make much sense. Witness the fact that at the end of the 1965-66 season, Variety reported: "The Broadway legit season. . . .was statistically impressive, artistically spotty, and topically lively. As always, the theatre was beset with problems, and, as usual, it survived them."

Last season was financially record-breaking, with the Broadway gross of almost $54 million, as against the all-time 1964-1965 record of almost $50 - 1/2 million. Of 52 commercial productions, 15 or 16 made a profit, or almost one in three. The ratio in other recent years had been almost one in six.

The gross on the road was only the fourth best on record -- about $32.2 million. But Variety found consolation for this. The bountiful crop of Broadway hits last season makes the coming year loom as "the biggest road season in some years."

OF THE BROADWAY SHOWS already inked in for next season, a great many are revivals, from "You Can't Take It With You" and "Rose Tattoo" to "School for Scandal" and "The Merchant of Venice." A few, like "We Have Always Lived in the Castle," are adaptations from other media. "I Do! I Do!" is a musical version of an older comedy, "The Four-Poster." What Broadway desperately has needed for several years has been serious drama written directly for the stage.

Broadway lost a promising show when the National Broadcasting Company paid $112,500 to William Hanley to produce his Flesh and Blood on television next winter. The play could, of course, eventually reach the legitimate stage. In the meantime, perhaps the fabulous invalid should stop looking under the bed and begin observing what its relatives, TV and the movies, are doing.

The average man is generally out of harmony: He feels particularly like working when he is bleeding.

The news that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant will be welcomed by all Americans interested in the health and welfare of the world organization as an instrument for peace and understanding.

He wants to quit but has decided to continue until the end of the year if members of the United Nations fail to name a successor when his term expires Nov. 3.

The announcement gives an air of stability and assurance to Tuesday's opening of the 21st session of the U. N. general assembly.

The United States has not always agreed on U. N. secretary-generals and procedures but they both wanted U Thant to stay on.

This is their response to a rule by the Burmese diplomat from the start to be certain that the United States and Soviet Union agree on any U.N. procedure destined to succeed. Some of his predecessors were not so discreet.

By scruplously following this rule he steered the organization away from any major eruptions involving the two major world powers, whose cooperation is necessary for the success of any U.N. undertaking.

Unfortunately, the same elements that contributed to this success in diplomacy are the root of his desire to resign from the office. He is deeply distressed at the lack of effectiveness of the U.N. He desires a U.N. with greater vitality and purpose. He regrets the lack of progress on disarmament, the failure to keep the U.N. solvent, the continued exclusion of Red China in an organization based on the principle of universality and he deplores the cruelty of the war in Viet Nam.

He has tried without success to be an effective intermediary to bring about a conclusion of the Viet Nam conflict.

This quiet, blunt man was virtually unknown outside U.N. corridors when he became the successor of the late Dag Hammarskjold.

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev then was determined to derail the U.N. secretariate by subordinating it to troika rule. Red China and Indonesia were plotting for a rival organization to the U.N.

Because of U Thant's dedication and the trust that he inspired, the U. N. did not fall apart when Hammarskjold was so tragically and abruptly removed in a plane crash.

Under the circumstances holding the U.N. together has been no small accomplishment.

Exactly one day after our columnist Victor Riesel returned from interviewing national leaders on both sides of the Iron Curtain, he dug up a story which beat the Washington press corps.

It was Riesel who learned from his many contacts exactly what President Johnson had said of Vice President Hubert Humphrey at an off-the-record dinner on the night of August 31. That night the President remarked that as long as he was in the White House he wanted Mr. Humphrey at his side, and that talk of his dropping him as a vice presidential candidate in '68 was nonsense.

That column was written Tuesday, Sept. 13. Five days later Mr. Humphrey publicly corroborated the story. The vice president's remarks were printed on many front pages across the land.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we would do without:

Parsley.

Gold toothpicks and sterling silver grape shears.

Hormone pills for pet goldfish.

Seeds in watermelons, paper panties on lamb chops, $10 haircuts for French poodles and miniskirts on maidens over 10 or matrons over 40.

Stupid teen-agers who call their parents stupid.

Movies in which the hero is a drug addict and the heroine's biggest problem is that she has gambled and lost at a racetrack the $100 she had borrowed to make a down payment on an abortion.

Singing at the opening night performance of the Metropolitan Opera. All that yammering onstage tends to distract the society audience from its main goal of seeing who's wearing what.

Stenographers with fingernails two inches longer than those of Dr. Fu Manchu.

Any new television program about quaint Southern hillbillies written by a scriptwriter who once spent a weekend in the Catskill foothills.

Penny weighing machines. They either lie about your weight, or don't work at all.

Anybody who wants you to contribute to his worthy cause, but won't give a nickel to the even more worthy cause you're collecting for.

Coin vending machines that now charge 15 cents for a candy bar smaller than you used to get for a nickel. Folding umbrellas that somehow will never unfold once it starts to rain.

Guys who try to read your newspaper over your shoulder on the bus — and get annoyed if you don't turn the pages quickly enough. Strangers who sidle up to you at cocktail parties and ask if you've made a will, and then wind up trying to sell you an insurance policy. Middle-aged blondes at cocktail parties who try to gain attention by looking at everyone's hands and telling their fortunes.

Any card with holes punched in it that comes by mail. It can only bring trouble.

LINERS THAT FLY

The airplane appears to be doing to the ocean liner what it has already done to the long-distance passenger train.

As recently as 1957, the transatlantic passenger business was about equally divided between planes and ships. Then came the jets. Last year they handled 86 per cent of all transatlantic bookings.

Even stiffer competition is in store for the shipping lines. The emphasis in jets of the near future will be on providing more and more luxurious accommodations and amenities for their passengers.

Although the giant Boeing 747 will be able to carry nearly 500 passengers, the company is planning on an average of 360, which leaves a lot of room for innovations in interior design.

Under consideration are such ideas as compartmentalization, with a variety of decorative styles in the compartments, a small movie theater adjoining a library, a nursery, conference rooms. There could even be two staterooms housing four passengers each on an upper deck.

There are as yet no plans for such things as swimming pools, ballrooms, shuffleboard decks or guided tours of the engine room. But don't rule them out.

WARNING FLAGS

The warning flags are going up. They have to do with whether this country can spend huge additional sums for defense, because of the massive acceleration of the war in Vietnam, and at the same time carry on welfare programs of unprecedented scope and cost without courting the most serious kind of trouble.

Senator Russell of Georgia has expressed the view that there are even greater dangers of inflation now than at the time of the Korean War. Senator Morton of Kentucky points out that " . . . .the Siamese twin of huge deficit financing is inflation," and he has all the historical precedent anyone could want to support that statement. Representative Laird suggests that there should be a re-evaluation of proposed appropriations totaling some $8 billion for new domestic programs which are primarily of a welfare nature.

More and more thoughtful observers, in and out of Congress, are expressing similar fears and concerns. There is a theory that all this spending will generate vast new tax revenues and so minimize the deficits. But it is only a theory, and unproven.

What has been proven is that when we attempt to buy more guns and provide more butter at the same time the dollar's buying power is battered down and down. Then the people of small means -- whom the welfare programs are supposed to help -- are the hardest hit. Is that tragedy due to recur once more?

So the vet was called. He looked ol' Sam over very carefully, then removed a quart bottle of greenish fluid from his little black bag and poured it in the watering trough.

Sam drank long and deep. Stood quite still for a moment. Then a gleam came into his eyes. His head and tail shot up. He made a few fast running circles, leaped the pasture fence, and made hurried "visitations" to 10 cows in succession.

"Derned if I know," said Uncle Jeff, "but it tastes like peppermint!"

OUGHT TO BE EASY

While walking along a creek bank, a man came across a young fellow lying lazily under a tree with a fishing line in the water, on which the cork was bobbing frantically. "Hey, you've got a bite!"

"Yeah," drawled the fisherman. "Would you mind pulling it out?"

The walker did so, only to have the recumbent one ask, "Would you mind taking the fish off, rebaiting the hook, and tossing it back in the creek?"

This was done, and the man commented jokingly, "As lazy as you are, you ought to have some kids to do these things for you."

"Not a bad idea," yawned the fisherman. "Got any idea where I could find a pregnant woman?"

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This weekend President Lyndon B. Johnson will have served 1,037 days -- exactly the same time as John F. Kennedy. And if a contemporary historian who records events as they happen today may venture a judgment, Lyndon Johnson has chalked up a record in these 1,037 days which would make him one of our greatest Presidents were it not for one thing. He has got us bogged down in one of the most unpopular wars in our 190 years as a nation.

Historians, of course, look beyond a man's TV image in gauging his record. They do not worry about whether he holds press conferences, or stages glamorized weddings for his daughter, or whether his voice has a Texas accent. They overlooked the uncouth ways of Abraham Lincoln, which in his day nettled Washington society just as Washington society grimaces over the unpolished language of the present "cotton pickin'" man in the White House.

Historians, looking at the final results, will find that LBJ picked up the Kennedy program when it was hopelessly foundering, reinforced it, added some ideas of his own, and rammed it through congress as no President, not even his friend Franklin Roosevelt, had even been able to do before.

Johnson, the first southern President in a hundred years, a man identified with Texas oil tycoons, walked up to the gaming table of politics and bet all his chips on the common man.

ACHIEVEMENT AND HATRED

No President in history, certainly not since Lincoln, has done so much for the Negro and reaped so much hatred in return. Both Eisenhower and Kennedy had paid lip service to the supreme court's school desegregation decision, but not much more. Johnson passed a school education bill generous to integrated schools but tough on those still segregated. This is what Gov. Wallace of Alabama is tearing his hair about. And it's what has the state of Georgia almost ready to elect a Republican governor.

Johnson's aid - to - education bill has done more for public schools than has been done by anyone since the days of Horace Mann. On top of this he passed a higher education bill to bolster colleges and universities. He picked up medicare, which other Presidents had been talking about for 20 years, and put it into law. Furthermore, its enforcement is integrating the hospitals of the south.

He has passed an auto safety law, a mine safety law, a cigarette safety law -- which no President even thought of doing before. Most revolutionary of all, he has passed a rent subsidy bill, which some of his predecessors would have called pure socialism. But Johnson recognized that slums must be cured if the big city is to survive. To that end he also passed a transportation act to help commuters, and has proposed -- though not passed -- an open housing bill to permit Negroes to move out of the slums.

Finally, Johnson saw that this country could not exist half in economic slavery and half free, so he passed an anti - poverty bill. This has been ridiculed and criticized. It may have been too little, and it did come late. But it has begun to take hold. Franklin Roosevelt, with all his skill, all his charm, and all the desperate drive of the great depression behind him, never passed a program anywhere near approaching this. John F. Kennedy never envisaged it and never could have passed it. Johnson, for all his cotton pickin' ways, did.

THE UNDERMINING BY WAR

That program, however, may be jeopardized by the war in Viet Nam and all that goes with it -- inflation, high interest rates, and the drop in political popularity.

Johnson, of course, inherited the war. But he did not improve it by also inheriting and promoting the No. 1 Hawk adviser of the Kennedy administration.

In the fall of 1961 Kennedy sent Walt Rostow, his foreign affairs adviser, and Gen. Maxwell Taylor, his military adviser, to South Viet Nam to recommend what he should do about the minor war he had inherited from Eisenhower. Rostow studied the situation, retreated to Baguio, the Philippine summer resort, and wrote a report recommending that Kennedy send one whole division to South Viet Nam.

At that time he had between 1,500 to 1,800 troops in Viet Nam, some of them disguised as mountain technicians in order ostensibly to stay within the 1,000 - troops limitation of the Geneva treaty.

Rostow wanted to increase this to around 18,000 men and disguise them as engineers to cope with floods on the Mekong River -- again to subvert the Geneva Treaty.

Gen. Taylor signed the report -- his first step as a Hawk. Later Kennedy sent the 18,000 troops and more, though not disguised as engineers.

President Johnson now has the man who initially got Kennedy deeply involved in Viet Nam -- Walt Rostow -- as his chief adviser. In fact, Johnson has promoted him from the state department to the White House, where he makes more recommendations for more and deeper troop commitments.

LBJ'S WEAK SPOT

All this hits at the weakest spot in Johnson's otherwise admirable qualifications as President, namely his lack of experience in foreign affairs. Here he is a prisoner of his state department and men like Rostow, promoted from the state department.

The state department has the habit of looking not at the long - range problems of the Presidency but at day - to - day international bureaucracy. Franklin Roosevelt spent much of his three terms bucking the state department. His pupil Lyndon Johnson has gone alone with the state department.

Nevertheless, Lyndon Johnson knows that he must get peace in Viet Nam or jeopardize all his great domestic accomplishments. And he has tried. He has tried much more than the American public realizes.

Doc. Duncan Says

We predict the time is not far distant when someone will have to account for the oil and mineral rights taken under the pretext of park conservation or any of the other gimmicks invented by politicians to hoodwink the people.

Why not let landowners reserve those rights?

H. L. Hunt Says

"THEY"--SEMI-ANONYMOUS

There is ideology even in pronouns. "I" and "you" are the watchwords of freedom and individualism. "We" may be the mark of collectivism. "They", a fearful, watchful, anonymous and uncontrollable "they", is often the brand of dictatorship.

We have all encountered the faintly disturbing use of "they" to refer to people or society in general, as in what "they think" or what "they say". The timid and the fearful are convinced they must conform to this vague collective dictate.

"They" becomes much more ominious when it begins to refer to public authorities, to government. "Will they let you do it?" is a question that should be a veritable red flag of danger to every man who believes in individual liberty. Destructive acts of course must be prohibited by law. But when officialdom in general has the power, purely by its own discretion, to allow an action or forbid it, the twilight of freedom is at hand.

The man who is proud of himself and his productive capacity, who cherishes his liberty and his initiative, will never be put off by what "they think" and he will reject with every fiber of his being the idea that any official has a right to control his life. But if the official commands irresistible force with an appearance of legality, he can have his way.

Defenders of freedom should urge that the looming, anonymous "they" be given its proper name where government is concerned, so that the source of fear and force may be clearly recognized, and curbed while there is still time. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Net Network of Federal Grand Juries Dig Into Mob Operations on Labor Front in 12 Cities.

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- With the aid of scores of FBI teams, the Justice Dept. has unleashed an unseasonable heat wave. Immaculate and traditionally imperturbable executives of a network of criminal syndicates are sweating it out in 12 major cities across the country from high-rise Manhattan to Miami's beaches and Los Angeles' boulevards.

The intensity of the Organized Crime section drives, some old and secretive, some new, is due to the sudden release of manpower from a burdensome summer chore--the cleansing of Justice Dept. records of information obtained by wiretapping and eavesdropping "bugs." Much of the summer was spent on the files to avoid their being "contaminated" by what would be considered unusual evidence in court--and which has been criticized by a Senate committee.

At least 20 grand juries now are hearing dramatic evidence from witnesses who are "opening up" on everything from the use of foreign banks in labor rackets, extortion, invasion of businesses by notorious Cosa Nostra characters to multi-million dollar shakedowns.

Probes in New York by the crusading U. S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau and in Northern New Jersey by the equally dedicated Federal "D.A." Dave Satz easily are the most startling and intriguing. In these areas it isn't a matter of whether there will be indictments of labor racketeers, but of how many indictments there will be.

But there are other important grand jury probes digging into mob muck in Oklahoma, Illinois, California (Los Angeles), Ohio, Michigan (fringes of Detroit), Virginia and Minnesota, it can be reported. There are other FBI probes, not yet in the grand jury stage, in Indiana and Missouri.

Easily the newest mob twist is developing in the U.S. Southern District of New York where Mr. Morgenthau has at least five grand juries hacking away at the underworld structure. He has been digging deeply for many months now into the mobsters' use of foreign "anonymous numbered accounts" banks in Panama and Switzerland to evade not only the income tax and financial securities laws, but the Federal Labor Statutes as well.

In the words of one source, "There is big money, real big money involved" in the operation. It works somewhat like this:

Corporation A, either a mob business or merely some firm needing cash, makes contact with any one of a number of lawyers or brokers who have connections with some labor-management pension funds. The company needs the money badly and is willing to pay a 10 per cent commission to the contact man. He puts the deal through.

Then, says he, pay me one per cent here -- and deposit nine per cent in such and such Swiss or Panamanian bank where "my partner" has an anonymous numbered account. It turns out that the "partner" is a union official or one of its pension fund trustees.

The trustee worked the deal with the lawyer or broker. There are many variations on the theme. Virtually all of them violate sections of the Taft Hartley or the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act.

The news on this front will break shortly enough--as it will across the Hudson River in Northern New Jersey. There the Justice Dept.'s Organized Crime section now headed by a professional law enforcement career man, Henry "Pete" Peterson, has concentrated an imposing force of diverse agents from several departments -- Labor, Justice, Treasury (Internal Revenue Service) --and, of course, the FBI.

In addition to Mr. Satz, there are three attorneys from the Organized Crime section. Their probe is the "hottest" thing in the investigation arena today. It goes right into the construction field.

There have been shakedowns reminiscent of earlier days when millions of dollars in small bills, old and well-worn, changed hands. Some business agents have been clipping as much as $60,000 to $70,000 a year.

What has appalled the probers is the ensuing cost to the consumer as a result of the skyrocketing expense of constructing the installations involved.

In the course of the investigation the federal authorities have come across old-fashioned terror which the public assumed went out with brass knucles and leadfilled baseball bats. Mind you, this did not spring from the underworld, but from a network of union officials who have consistently told the government to go to hell -- and who have refused to cooperate with the authorities on any important level.

Mrs. Lockhart Is Hostess to Circle Meeting

Mrs. Lockhart served coffee and cake as the members arrived. All 10 members were present for the meeting, final one of the church year.

The circle presented the chairman, Mrs. Leon Chapman, with a book, "Living Letters," in appreciation of her work this year.

Mrs. Chapman presided over the business meeting and turned the meeting over to the program chairman, Mrs. John Moll, who presented the program. Mrs. Moll was assisted by Mrs. Dan Murchison, Mrs. Pat Lea, Mrs. Glen Cracraft, Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. O. V. Thornton.

Mrs. W. C. Moore read the prayer calendar for the day's missionaries. After a discussion on the program, the meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Chapman.

Star Act

New stars are added to the flag when a state is admitted to the Union. An Act of Congress of Apr. 4, 1818, provides that a new star shall be added to the flag on July 4 following the admission of a new state.

Kentucky Challenges Southern States to Catch up in Tourism

KENTUCKY DAM VILLAGE, Ky. (AP)-"Come and catch us if you can" was Kentucky's challenge at the windup of the Southern Governors Conference.

Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell told the governors that Kentucky has developed its park system and increased its tourist industry better than any other Southern State.

"The truth of the matter is," said North Carolina Gov. Dan K. Moore, "we are a long way from reaching the full potential of tourism in the South."

Moore said tourist traffic is going through but not stopping with the possible exception of Kentucky.

Unbearable Bite

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) —The State Game and Fish Department says a communication failure near Grants last week resulted from difficulties that were more than a radio transmitter could bear.

A crew was sent to check the problem.

The department said the crew found a black bear had chewed into a power line feeding the transmitter and had been electrocuted.

Secretaries Meet Tuesday

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Girardot Chapter of the National Secretaries Association met at the Colonial Inn for its regular monthly meeting Tuesday.

Members from the Sikeston area who attended were Mrs. Lela Martin, Mrs. Marjorie Hopkins and Miss Elvira Metz along with one guest, Mrs. Phyllis Sherrod.

Miss Jacqueline Murphy, personnel assistant for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., in St. Louis, spoke on "Diamond, Emeralds, Pearls and Secretaries." Currently Miss Murphy is conducting organization and policy meetings, gives secretarial development training and conducts training conferences on leadership for newly appointed management people.

The next monthly meeting of the Girardot Chapter will be held at the Holiday Inn in Sikeston in October. Secretaries interested in this organization, contact Marjorie Hopkins at GR1-4660.

Dr. T. W. Willingham

Dr. Willingham To Be Rival Evangelist

Revival services at the First Church of the Nazarene will begin at 7 p.m. tonight and continue through Oct. 2. Services Sunday morning are at 10:45 a.m. The evangelist will be Dr. T. W. Willingham of Kansas City.

Dr. Willingham has served the Church of the Nazarene as pastor, evangelist, treasurer and president of a Nazarene college, and as a district superintendent.

For the past 20 years he was director of the Nazarene Radio League. Under his supervision "Showers of Blessing," the international radio voice of the Church of the Nazarene, has become known in broadcasting around the world. Its Spanish counterpart, "La Hora Nazarena," has had a rapid growth and is now carried on more radio stations than any other Protestant Spanish language broadcast.

Dr. Willingham retired from his work with the Nazarene Radio League at the end of January, 1965, leaving his work with the broadcasts scheduled on approximately 700 stations, giving worldwide coverage.

He is author of the prophetic study, "Tornado in the Sky."

Miss Sara Crumpecker Says Vows With George K. Ebel

MOREHOUSE--Miss Sara Ann Crumpecker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Crumpecker, exchanged wedding vows with George Kenneth Ebel of Memphis at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Rauch - Spence Methodist church.

Mrs. James Estep was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire styled floor-length gown of satin. The bodice was overlaid with lace and featured a scoop neckline and long lace sleeves. The lace train was trimmed in satin and was attached at the shoulders. Her headdress was a crown of lilies of the valley securing a veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mary Rowell was the bride's only attendant. She wore a pink crepe floor-length empire styled dress. The bodice featured elbow-length sleeves and a scooped neck. A garland of green velvet ivy encircled the waistline. She wore a veil headpiece and carried white spider mums.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white silk cloth. Bows of ribbon were at the corners. The three-tiered wedding cake centered the table. Punch and coffee were served from silver services. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Janey Kindle, Miss Ruth Ann Throgmorton of Memphis and Miss Sondra Jeffress of Poplar Bluff. Amiee H. Sailors was in charge of the guest book.

The bride's going away costume was a pink knit suit with matching accessories and a rose corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will live at Hernando, Miss.

Mizzou Tangles With Illinois, Tigers After Second Win

COLUMBIA, MO. -- Having kicked away its opening-season football jinx, Missouri trains its guns on Illinois at Champaign on Saturday afternoon as the Tigers attempt to add to their impressive second-game winning streak.

Mizzou blanked Minnesota 24-0 last week to post its first inaugural victory in the past four years. Despite the occasional opening-game stumbles, however, Dan Devine-coached teams have yet to taste defeat in a season's second-game during the successful mentor's eight-year stay here.

The near-perfect skein, including seven victories and a tie, will be given a strong test from the Illini, expected to bounce back from their surprising 26-7 loss to Southern Methodist last weekend. Coach Pete Elliot has 25 lettermen back from last year's team, which won five of its last six games.

The 1:30 p.m. (CDT) intersectional tussle -- Missouri's second straight against a Big Ten foe -- will be only the fourth between the two adjacent state schools. The Illini hold a 2-1 lead in the series with 10-0 and 24-7 victories in 1896 and 1913 respectively. Mizzou's lone win was a 27-20 decision in 1949.

The series between the two long-time recruiting rivals will continue with a 1968 date in Champaign and a neutral field battle a year later in St. Louis.

The Tigers received favorable responses to several early-season question marks in their opener. Highly creditable was the performance of untried quarterback Gary Kombrink, who completed all eight of his passes and ran for 63 yards. Mizzou also was able to boost its final victory margin late in the game on sophomore linebacker John Douglas's pass interception touchdown.

Illinois, however, which lost backfield standouts Jim Grabowski, Fred Custardo and Sam Price via graduation, faltered at the quarterback spot, where Sophomore Bob Naponic never was able to get his feet on the ground. SMU, with visions of last year's 42-0 rout at the hands of the Illini, also pushed over a last-minute six points to increase its winning edge.

Elliot has named Dean Volkman, 181-pound junior letterman, to direct his sophomore and junior-dominated squad. Volkman was inserted in the lineup during the second half when the Illini drove for their lone touchdown, narrowing SMU's lead to 13-7. Illinois then tried an onsides kick in order to retain the ball, but the Mustangs ran back the boot 32 yards to set up their game-clinching score.

Other Illinois personnel being given a wary eye by Devine and his Missouri assistants include end and flanker John Wright, a pre-season All-American pick and last year's Big Ten leading pass receiver, and halfback Cyril Pinder who holds the Illini record in the 60-yard dash.

The Tigers' punting team, which earned Devine's plaudits after holding Minnesota to only 15 yeard in five returns last weekend, will attempt to cover Pinder and another Illini back sprinter, fullback Doug Harford. Bill Bates, whose booming 42-yard field goal put Mizzou on the scoreboard in its opener, has a 40.9 punting average after eight kicks.

Several former teammates on the Illini and the Mizzou traveling squad, who attended Illinois high schools, will have reunions in Saturday's game at Champaign. Kombrink will meet another Belleville product, linebacker Herschel Johnson, and rival offensive ends, Missouri's Marty Berg and Illinois's Craig Timko, both played for Riverside-Brookfield high.

Former Collinsville teammates, Mizzou linebacker Bob Powell and Illini offensive guard Mike Waitukaitis, are expected to be in the game at the same times. Tiger starting tackle Lee Mungai and Illinois linebacker Bill Janecek both played for Berwyn high.

AP Sportswriter Picks Browns

NEW YORK (AP)—Something has to give Sunday when the Green Bay Packers and Los Angeles Rams, only unbeaten teams in the Western Conference, meet at Green Bay.

The Rams, fresh from an upset over the Chicago Bears in a grudge game, think they may be able to go all the way. The Packers, having disposed of Baltimore and Cleveland in replays of last year's big games, head into a normal schedule.

If the Rams had a little more punch, it would be tempting to pick them to upend the Packers, but that solid Green Bay defense should be able to handle the Roman Gabriel-Tommy McDonald aerials.

The old Hand picker hit a 9-2 pace last week for a season total of 19-4-2 (AFL 10-1, NFL 9-3-2), but this could be a rough one. It is possible to see an upset behind every tree.

Let's take another shot with all games scheduled for Sunday.

NFL

Green Bay 13, Los Angeles 10—Packers will have to go over or around that big front four of the Rams and Bart Starr's swing passes to Paul Hornung and Jim Taylor may do the job. George Allen has Rams sky high but they can't afford to fumble against those Packer ballhawks.

Cleveland 27, St. Louis 24—They split last year, Cards winning big 49-13 with Charley Johnson healthy in early season. Cards usually give Browns fits and may do it again but you can't give Frank Ryan too much time or he'll kill you with Paul Warfield and Gary Collins.

Dallas, 28, Minnesota 24—Cowboys just did edge Vikings 28-24 in Sept. 2 exhibition game despite big night by Bill Brown. Minnesota pass defense leaks and Don Meredith knows it.

Pittsburgh 24, Washington 21—And who would want to wager an old shoe on that one? Steelers must go with Ron Smith, who has only one pro game under his belt, and staggering Redskins keep giving away points faster than Sonny Jurgensen can get them. Redskins won both games easily last year.

Baltimore 31, San Francisco 24—Home opener for the Colts with Johnny Unitas ready to make Raymond Berry a record holder. Raymond needs only 58 yards to take all-time receiving title. After two weeks to think about the 20-20 tie with Vikings, 49ers should be hungry for action.

Philadelphia 28, New York 17—Giants looked like disorganized club in Dallas. Eagles about due to explode against somebody, especially if weak pass rush gives Norm Snead time to find his targets.

Detroit 10, Atlanta 0—The Randy Johnson-Alex Hawkins combo is Falcons' main threat but that Lion defense is tough.

Chicago has a bye.

AFL

San Diego 28, Oakland 21—Raiders must be desperate for a win after losing two straight following opener in Miami. Chargers had one week off and are aching to get even for 14-7 exhibition defeat by Oakland.

New York 35, Denver 7—Joe Namath can call the score in this one. Broncs making first start for new coach with Ray Malavasi replacing Mac Speedie after two defeats. Until Cookie comes home, Broncs in deep trouble.

Buffalo 21, Houston 20—Bills seem to have shaken off problems in romp over Miami.

Kansas City 31, Boston 14—Chiefs haven't scored less than 31 points this year, including exhibitions, so why not again.

Dogs Seek Revenge From 6-0 Victory By Charleston

The question is can the Charleston BlueJays turn the tide again?

The game will be at 7:30 p.m. CST. It had been printed on schedules as 7:30 p.m. DST.

Last year the unheralded at the start of the season BlueJays scored a 6-0 triumph over the highly rated Dogs, who are on the top of the area picks this week to revenge their first loss to Charleston in 17 years.

Charleston tied Poplar Bluff and Cape Central for top honors in the conference last season after pushing the Dogs aside.

The overall record for the teams is in the Bulldogs favor as they have a 54-23 record against the Jays and have tied twice.

Although the Bulldogs are favored by two touchdowns look for a real close game with the team with the most spirit, drive and hustle leaving the public school stadium with a victory.

There is no shortage of talent with either squad as Sikeston has a fine backfield in Lopp, Scudder and Limbaugh along with Mike Garner while the Jays have such players as Charles Babb at quarterback, Pod Ashley at guard, Dave Williams at halfback and Gary Williams at halfback and Gary Beis and Bruce Defield at ends.

Poplar Bluff is at home, playing the rough and ready upset minded Perryville Pirates. The Pirates have split in two games and have a light team. Bluff will feature the districts leading scorer in Joan Brown.

The Pirates have a habit of coming up for the big games and this is a big one. The Mules sport one of the backfield combinations in the conference. John Brown, a hard-running junior, has taken up where he left off last season.

The line has started to jell. This was the big question for Coach Jim Lohr as the season started and the Mules allowed only one touchdown to a high scoring Kennett group last week in the conference opener. Bluff has scored 59 points in two games. Perryville stopped Potosi before failing to Sikeston and has notched a total of 45 points and given up 20.

Other area action will find Kennett at Jackson, Chaffee at Portageville, East Prairie at Hayti, Malden at Gideon and Dexter will be at Caruthersville.

Cape State Takes On Evansville In Home Opener

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- Southeast Missouri State, hoping to rebound after an opening loss last week at Northeast Louisiana State, hosts Evansville College here Saturday night at 8 p.m. on Houck Field.

The Purple Aces of Evansville, who defeated Southeast Missouri last year 23-6, opened their season successfully last week with a 7-6 win over Bradley University.

The Indians prepared this week for a strong running Evansville team, sparked by the roll-out running of quarterback Joe Loge and the straight-up power of 215-pound Ken Mills. 5-4 finisher last year, the Aces are rated as "improved" by Jim Byers, in his first year as head coach.

The game is the first at home for the Indians, who will be playing in completely redesigned uniforms this year.

The Indians of coach Kenny Knox got off to a good start in last week's game, and held a 9-6 half-time lead, largely on the strength of a 68-yard pass from quarterback Greg Brune to split end Chuck Koerner. The Louisianans wore the Indians down, however, during the second half, and scored two touchdowns in the final period to ice the game.

Knox said that he was concerned about the large number of first-game mistakes, particularly on defense, where missed assignments led to frequent gains by Northeast Louisiana.

A bright spot, however, was a stout goal-line defense mustered by the Indians, which stopped one drive on the 1-yard line, and which had two near-misses on two Northeast Louisiana drives.

The Indians seemed to miss defensive tackle Van Hitt, a 235-pound sophomore from Jackson, who was suffering from a severe spider bite, and did not suit up for the game. His condition, Knox said, is improving, and it is hoped he will be ready for Evansville.

On the offense, the Southeast Missouri team showed occasional flashes of brilliance against a tough defense. Quarterback Brune hit on only 4 of 12 passes, but averaged more than 28 yards per pass. Halfbacks Walt Smallwood of Webster Groves, Mike Smith of E. St. Louis, and John Diepenbrock of St. Louis (Roosevelt), along with fullback Jim Farrell of St. Louis (Mercy), all averaged around 4 yeard per carry.

Eight Ball

We're going down to the 5 and 10 store, or somewhere, this week, and get a new eight ball. . . Where do you pick up an eight ball?

Well. . . We need a different one anyways. . . after suffering through the first two weeks of high school football in Southeast Missouri, where teams don't go by predictions, at least not by the eight ball that picks the winners now. . . .

Everyone, including us, had Carbondale, Ill. picked over Cape Central. Those Tigers hung in their tough, however, and look what happened. . . a 14-11 upset. Central picked up scores in the first and second frame and pushed across from home in the fourth for the victory.

The old devil. . . in the eight ball, down after his first two weeks of failure, gazes again and we relate what he sees. . .

CHARLESTON AT SIKESTON -- The game of the week, and perhaps of the year. . . . Charleston swept past the Dogs last season 6-0 and the game this year might be a repeat of last seasons game. . . but it is very unlikely. The winner will be the team with the most incentive. .. and guts.

Charleston has been up and down in their first two contests and hope to be up for this big one. . . .

The Dogs line is big and quick. . . and rates among the top in the conference.

Sikeston is a big 10-point favorite in this game, but we know Charleston can win. If the Bluejays defense can contain Lopp, Scudder, Garner and Limbaugh, look for the Jays to pull a major upset.

Sikeston 21, Charleston 7.

KENNETT AT JACKSON -- Kennett is mad after last week's loss to Poplar Bluff. It will be a rough night for the Jackson Redmen . . . . Kennett 32, Jackson 13.

PERRYVILLE AT POPLAR BLUFF -- Another important North Division contest. Bluff beat Kennett last week, while Perryville was nipped by Sikeston. The Pirates will face too much beef. . . .

Bluff 28, Perryville 12

DEXTER AT CARUTHERSVILLE -- The Tigers will be on the recoil from last weeks rousing win over Hayti, but they're playing the wrong team. . . Dexter will give the Tigers all they want. . . pointwise that is. . . .

Caruthersville 20, Dexter 6.

CHAFFEE AT PORTAGEVILLE -- The Bulldogs have completely recovered from their 0-0 deadlock with Dexter last week and should make a good Red Devil sandwich out of the host!!!

Portageville 32, Chaffee 6.

EAST PRAIRIE AT HAYTI-- There should be a lot of scoring in this contest, with East Prairie perhaps a little more keyed up than the Indians . . . The Indians will fight close. . . Mixed Up. . . Ya.

Hayti 26, East Prairie 19.

GIDEON AT MALDEN -- Malden will win their first game of the season. The Dogs got their's last week. . . .

Malden 13, Gideon 7.

John Brown Leads SEMO Scoring

Brown, who scored two touchdowns at Kennett last Friday night, is leading the district in the Northern division with 10 points, one point ahead of Sikeston's Wayne Limbaugh, Roger Oster and Gerald Guemmer of Perryville, and Larry Freeland of the Southern conference Portageville team.

MSHSSA BOARD OF CONTROL TO STUDY FOOTBALL PLAY-OFF

The Board of Control at its September 16, 1966, meeting considered the suggestion made at its coaching school conducted last August that the Board of Control make a study to determine whether the schools playing interscholastic football desire to have the MSHSSA administer a series of football playoffs. Members of the Board acknowledged that similar suggestions had been made in the past.

It is the opinion of the Board that the interest expressed extends from:

1. The fact that the MSHSAA sponsors district and state tournaments in other high school sports.

2. That there is increased public interest in providing athletic activities for youth as evidenced by additions to high school programs and the number of events sponsored by non-school organizations during the summer months.

3. That playoffs would provide a stimulant to football.

4. That the same value could be received in football playoffs as are now received from other MSHSAA district and state events. It would provide the schools with an opportunity to demonstrate and to evaluate football over the state. (Members of the Board also expressed the opinion that any football playoffs should include an evaluation of sportsmanship as is now done in the basketball tournament program.)

5. Twenty-one states now have football playoffs and some others are giving study to them.

6. Providing a program with educational values that is officially an integral part of the interscholastic program of member schools can enhance the interest of the schools.

The Board instructed the Executive Secretary to make a study and outline the steps to be followed that include:

1. The schools playing interscholastic football shall be polled to determine whether there is any general desire for the MSHSAA to sponsor a series of football playoffs.

2. That if there is a desire, a committee shall be appointed to formulate a plan to present to the Board of Control.

3. After any consideration of he Board to such a play, it would be submitted to the schools for their evaluation.

4. That the Board of Control shall be guided by the expressed desires of the schools as will be revealed by the study.

It is expected that the study will be completed in about six to eight weeks.

Swing Along With Ted

by Ted Williams

POW! WHAM! KERPLUNK!

Well, the mighty mamoths of professional football have exploded on our television screens. The football season is just getting under way and already there are grunts, groans and oofs from the fans. The New York Jets are burying the Giants the way the Mets buried the Yanks.

That old joke about Washington, D.C. being first in war, first in peace and last in the American League is changing. New York City is beginning to become the dust bin for sports teams. Outside of the Jets, the once mighty Yankees, the Rangers and the Knickerbockers have all been given brooms to clean out the cellar.

Actually, the biggest rivalry going on is between the New York Giants and the Jets. The Jets never looked better when they clobbered Houston, 52-13, and the Giants never looked worse when Dallas whomped them, 52-7. Nevertheless, as attractive as football is, everyone is gearing themselves now for baseball's World Series. This is the big one. This is still the sports attraction of our time. Many people today look upon pro football as a stronger gate attraction than baseball but this isn't so. You can't compare a once-a-week crowd for 14 games against baseball's 162 games. Though I do wish the schedule was still back to 154 games, it isn't fair to either sport to compare them in any way. It's like comparing Frank Sinatra to the Beatles. There's no comparison nor should there be, since each is a giant in his own way.

The only comparisons that should be made have to be within the context of the sport itself; the Orioles vs the Dodgers or Pirates, the Green Bay Packers against the Jets, the Boston Celtics against the Lakers, etc.

But no matter what the comparisons the World Series in baseball stands alone on top of the mountain no matter who else tries to stake out a flag. And this year is no exception. Though the American League race as usual was not up to par with the National League, it's still a new face once again with the Orioles on top. The little Birds from Baltimore along with the football Colts have made Baltimore one of our top sports cities. Baltimore doesn't have to take back seat to anybody.

It's also good to know that while the series is on, for a few hours each day we can put aside all of our problems. And why not? This is the way it should be. We all need a breather every once in a while. Perhaps the rest and relaxation of watching the baseball pros in action will give us a chance to take a deep breath and start attacking our own problems with more vigor. Who's going to win? Well, it better be the Orioles. With players like Frank Robinson, Boog Powell, Brooks Robinson in the line-up there should be a lot of 'Pows! Whams! and Kerplunks! rattling off their bats.

Of course, that's what a lot of us said about the Twins last year, didn't we?

Carol's Teen Party Leads To A Lucky Stage Break

Funny, how one party a girl gives can change the course of her life. Take Carol Brewster, for example, in the new story starting Monday in Mary Worth on the comics page.

TROY MEDINA

She knows the senior boys are going to find them and try to shake them up. What she doesn't know is that handsome young producer Troy Medina will also make the scene, under very unusual circumstances.

22 Sikeston Seniors To Represent Community In Annual Beauty Contest

Teresa Hamelmann, Betty Hartlein, Cheryl Hurley, Carlotte Jones, Beth Marshall, Elizabeth Martin, Melinda Morrison.

Crowning of the Miss Sikeston will take place approximately at 11;30 after the judges reach a decision.

After the Charleston-Sikeston football game, the girls will assemble at the Dunn Hotel and go immediately to the stage on the midway.

Contestants must walk the length of the stage for the judges and audience to view. They will be selected on beauty, charm, grace, and appearance in formal dress.

Hunter Phillips, chairman of the state tax commission from Jefferson City, will be here to place the crown on the lucky girl.

Barbara was crowned by R.J. King, St. Louis County Representative, last year.

Two alternates will be named and immediately after, the winner will be announced. A bouquet of flowers will be presented her and she will reign supreme as queen of the city for the coming year.

The new Miss Sikeston will not only have honor to her credit, but she will also be the lucky recipient of many gifts bestowed upon her by city businessmen.

She will have the responsibility of representing not only her city but also Sikeston high school throughout the coming year during her reign.

Next year at this time she will return to the contest and make her final appearance and express appreciation and thanks for her noteworthy office.

She will be hostess for the Miss Cotton Carnival Contest following the parade.

Tomorrow evening she will attend the Queen's ball at the American Legion Hall in Sikeston, completing her exciting week end.

Miss Judy Burge Is SHS Student Teacher

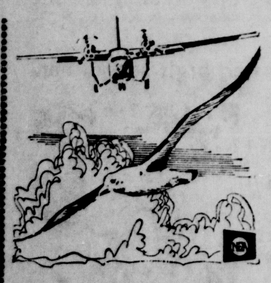
Miss Judy Burge is a senior at Southeast Missouri State College where she is majoring in social studies, and her minor is English. Miss Burge is doing her student teaching in the history department, directed by Mrs. Catherine Matthews.

She commutes from Cape Girardeau each day.

It means nothing to be young without beauty, or beautiful without youth.

DRUM MAJOR Elizabeth Martin will lead the "marching Bulldogs" in the coming season.

matter of fact



The albatross is one of the most powerful flying sea birds in the world. There is evidence that the phenomenal homing instinct of these birds has enabled them to circumnavigate the southern hemisphere one or more times between breeding seasons. One albatross, taken from its nesting place on Midway Island to the North Pacific, made the return trip of 3,200 miles in just over 10 days, at an average speed of 317 miles per day.

Twins Different; Double Identity Only Skin Deep

Sophomores Margaret and Marsha Morrison were born September 30, 1951 -- Margaret being 17 minutes older than her twin sister.

The girls moved to Sikeston in 1961 from Charleston and presently reside at 845 Agnes Street with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Morrison, and one sister, Melinda, who is a senior.

Unlike most cases of twins, it is not difficult to distinguish Margaret from Marsha (if one can simultaneously remember that Margaret has the darker hair and Marsha is the taller of the two).

Friends of the two state that Margaret and Marsha are distinctively different, in spite of strong physical resemblence. Their personalties reveal individual interests and tastes, but they sometimes like to dress alike.

Both girls play the flute in the 7:30 marching band and have three of their seven classes together. This situation occasionally confuses many people -- especially the teachers who are involved.

The girls' aunt, the former Carol Keller, who presently lives in Dallas, Texas, was the editor of the Barker in 1959.

APPRECIATION

The Red Peppers and cheerleaders wish to extend their appreciation to Sharon Kirby for taking the time and effort to bring her drum to the out-of-town games.

Appreciation is also extended to the decoration committees for the Chaffee and Perryville games. "The decorations boosted the school spirit for both games," said Mary Reid, vice-cayenne.

SHS Band To Perform In Parade

Sikeston's "marching Bulldogs," directed by Keith Collins, will be the largest of 20 bands from Southeast Missouri schools to march in the annual cotton carnival parade in downtown Sikeston tomorrow morning.

Drum majors Elizabeth Martin and Susan Jobe will lead the 175-piece high school band.

"Semper Fidelis" and Thunderer" march along with the traditional "Sounding Brass" theme song will be played as the musicians complete the parade that highlights the cotton carnival in Sikeston.

Band will present its first half-time routine of the football season when the Bulldogs meet the Charleston Blue Jays tonight at the public school stadium.

"Spotlight on the Brass" fanfare will be played and followed by a precision drill to the music of the "Band Played On."

Standing in the concert formation of SHS, the players will present "No Matter What Shape" and "Melody by Rachmaninoff." Another two-step drill to "Sounding Brass" will follow.

Completing the show, the band will march off the football field while playing "The Red and the Black."

Growler Sales For '67 Start Monday Morning

Yearbooks for '67 go on sale Monday morning. The cost this year is $5 and each student will vote for the royalty candidates as he purchases a book.

Nominees for Growler king and queen will be elected Tuesday morning. One boy and one girl will be elected from each senior homeroom.

The price of the yearbook will be reduced to $4.50 for the first person to make a purchase.

The staff began work on the Growler at the beginning of school and photographs are being snapped of the school events.

In approximately six weeks, the Growler king and queen will be crowned.

Student Council Inducts New Representatives

Charles Matthews, IV, secretary of the Sikeston Board of Education and prominent lawyer in the city, was the guest speaker for the induction of the newly-elected student council members Tuesday morning.

He used as his subject "New Morality," and he gave a review of its relationship to high school students, pointing out especially those students who were members of the student council.

After the conclusion of Mr. Matthews' remarks to the student body, president Brian Underwood introduced the officers of the student council and presented each with a pin, the official emblem of the organization.

Officers of the organization are Brian Underwood, president; Fred Matthews, vice-president; Judy Murchison, secretary; Sally Faulkner, corresponding secretary; and Danny Lopp, treasurer.

Student council representatives were elected at the beginning of the year, in the second homeroom meeting, and the officers of the organization were elected at the conclusion of last year.

The election was held at the climax of an intensive campaign given by the nominees for office. Elections were by secret ballot.

FHA Announces Jean Shankle As President

Assisting her will be Janet Reeves, vice-president; Rita Douglas, secretary-treasurer; and Connie Wagley, reporter-program chairman.

Installation ceremony will be held in the near future for the officers.

Regular meetings of the club will be Monday afternoons.

An award is given at the annual honor assembly in the spring to the most active person in the organization.

Any girl interested in joining the club should contact Mrs. Wilma April, sponsor. or one of the officers.

Bulldog Barker Is Result Of Long, Active Hours

"PASS ME THE SCISSORS."

The paper itself is put together in five distinct steps-- assigning articles to reporters, writing the articles, copyreading, proofreading them, and laying out the copy.

The first step of the first step is discussing what is newsworthy among the various areas of the school. A partial list of these areas include faculty, sports, guidance, art, music, all clubs and organizations, academic curriculum, and the student body.

Writing the articles is undoubtedly the most difficult step. Appointments, sometimes inconvenient, must be made for all interviews and most of the photography. All articles must be written four days after they have been assigned in order to meet the deadline -- two days before the paper is issued. All articles then enter step "three" of the operation.

In copyreading, the various editors look primarily for mistakes in grammar and spelling, and delete any "cutty" remarks.

The final copies of the articles are sent to the printer where they are printed into columns as wide as those on a Barker page. This "proof" is then sent back to the school. Corrections are made by proofreading each article. The "proof" is then sent back to the printer.

Arranging the news copy on dummy sheets deserves to be the last step. Since the invention of the Gutenburg press, journalists have failed to come up with a better way of making the articles "fit" onto the paper than trial and error. Each page must be balanced according to the boldness of headlines and arrangement of photographs in order to make the page more attractive to a reader.

The copy is taped to the dummy sheets, torn up, cut up, and taped again until it finally finds a satisfactory resting place.

All four pages of material are then taken to the printer, where they are processed. The result? You're looking at it! --Connie Nowell.

High School DE Students Begin Work

Distributive education, directed by Norman Woods, is designed to give job experience and training in the particular fields which students show an interest.

Besides on-the-job training, the 21 students enrolled in this program in Sikeston high school receive classroom training each morning at 7:30.

Students participate in the distributive education program attend classes one-half day and work on the job the other half day. Most of these leave school at 1:20 each day.

Jobs are found for the students by the instructor. A student may have a job before he enters this program, but it must be authorized by the coordinator before he is permitted to continue working at this particular place of business on school time.

Sikeston's distributive education organization is affiliated with the state group, called DECA.

Outstanding Red Peppers

Karen Baugus

Sally Faulkner

Senior Sally Faulkner and junior Karen Baugus were named outstanding Red Peppers at the Perryville game Friday night.

The stands were crowded with excited Red Peppers while the cheerleaders led the crowd as it cheered the Bulldogs on to victory.

"All Red Peppers are commended for their outstanding pep and spirit shown at the Chaffee and Perryville games," said Cayenne Toni Zaricor.

Most young people fancy they are being natural when they are only being lowbred and rude.

Ann Landers
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I wrote to you two years ago about my husband who couldn't stay in one town long enough for me to enjoy the flowers I planted. You said it was a wife's job to "go where the grapes grow" --so off we went again -- our 11th move in 16 years.

Well, the grapes are sour again. New Mexico was too dry and Oregon was too wet. California had too many people and Montana didn't have ENOUGH people. Atlanta was no good because he couldn't understand what the natives were saying. Boston was no good because the natives couldn't understand what HE was saying.

Our children have adjusted to these moves beautifully so that is not the problem. It's just that I am sick of pulling up stakes every time my husband gets it into his head to move. Last night he started to cough and said, "I know I'd feel better in Phoenix."

He's a first class machinist and can make a good living wherever he goes. Is there any chance that I can get him to stay put this time? -- MRS. NOMAD

Dear Mrs.: Probably not. So be thankful the children haven't suffered from the repeated uprooting and go along with the loon. I don't believe in egging people on to fight battles they can't win.

Dear Ann Landers: Our oldest son is in his third year of college. My husband and I are having a serious disagreement over how much financial help we should give the boy.

Nick has always been a hard worker, a saver and very independent. He and his father do not get along well. The first two years my husband paid Nick's tuition and offered him a spending allownace which Nick refused.

This year Nick says he doesn't want any financial help at all. He insists on using the money he has saved from working. My husband says this is O.K. with him but it is NOT O.K. with me.

I feel parents are morally obligated to put their children through college if they possibly can. We are not millionaires but we can handle the boy's education with no strain. Please agree with me in print. I need your help. -- N.R.

Dear N.R.: Sorry, but you'll get no help from me on this one. Obviously Nick has opted to paddle his own canoe. His demonstration of independence and initiative should be applauded, not undermined. The more our kids do for themselves the better off they'll be. So for heaven's sake, mother, leave him alone. He sounds like a winner.

Dear Ann Landers: I sympathize with the woman who was terrified whenever she had to go to a funeral home and look at a dead person. I have the same horrible fear -- but I know what caused it.

When I was a child (40 years ago) I overheard some adults talking about a man who had been pronounced dead and taken to a funeral home. He was actually in a coma. When the mortician saw the "corpse" move, he almost had a heart attack. A physician was summoned at once. He rushed over and revived the "dead" man who lived five years after that.

A few years later my grandfather died. When I went to the wake I was petrified. I was sure grandpa would come alive at any moment. The thought of it made me physically ill. From that day to this I have asked my friends to excuse me from going to funerals and I tell them why. They all understand. -- COUNT ME OUT

Dear Count: If you haven't been able to overcome the fear after 40 years, you might as well stay home and spare yourself the agony.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry -- Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Morehouse and Morley High Schools open their football season this Friday, when they meet on the Morehouse gridiron at 2:30.

We hear it rumored that one of our nearby cotton growers was planning to relieve the shortage of cotton pickers by importing a tribe of monkeys to do the picking. The only thing which kept him from it was the warning a neighbor gave him. "You bring those monkeys in here," he said, "and within six months the Republicans will have them voting." So the experiment was given up.

Miss Della Harper was crowned "Queen of the Southeast Missouri District Fair" Friday afternoon by Congressman Ralph E. Bailey.

Morehouse -- Miss Handa Saville, who is training for a nurse in the St. Louis City Hospital, is at home on a vacation. She says the gangsters in St. Louis make the best patients.

Construction projects totaling $18,000 will be started soon in Sikeston, it was learned through inspection of records in the office of City Clerk, A. C. Barrett.

Elmer Frederick Mangrum, 63 years old, died Wednesday afternoon at his home on Matthews.

David Rowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt H. Rowe, will leave September 23 for Fulton, Mo., where he will attend Westminster College.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beavers and family of 217 Trotter, are moving to a farm in Hardin, Ill., soon.

Willand Takes Episcopal Post

ST. LOUIS--Appointment of Rev. Pitt S. Willand as administrative director for program and operations of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri was announced today by Bishop George L. Cadigan.

To accept the diocesan post, the Rev. Mr. Willand resigned as rector of Emmanuel Church, Webster Groves, effective Oct. 31. Emmanuel parishioners were informed of the resignation yesterday in letters from Willand and Dr. Manning M. Pattillo, senior warden.

Selection of the program officer by Bishop Cadigan completed the staffing of five divisions called for in the reorganization of the diocese by action of two conventions last spring. In the new post, Willand will oversee the total diocesan program, working in cooperation with Rev. Anthony J. Morley, research and planning officer.

The Prayer
For Today
From the Upper Room

Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father hath sent me, even so I send you. (John 20:21)

PRAYER: Our Father, we would be faithful in our appointment with Thee when Thy children gather together for study and worship. Help us to feel the warmth of Thy presence. Equip us for the task of strengthening and furthering the kingdom. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

Today In U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1779, the first decisive naval battle waged by the United States was fought off the coast of England. American naval hero John Paul Jones defeated and captured the British ship "Serapis."

On this date:

In 1939, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini said Italy's position would be one of neutrality.

In 1943, the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China agreed on the creation of a United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman said he would shoulder full responsibility for future development of the atomic bomb and atomic energy.

In 1952, Rocky Marciano knocked out Jersey Joe Walcott in the 13th round, winning the world heavyweight championship.

Ten years ago — Britain and France asked the U.N. Security Council to consider the situation created by Egypt's unilateral action in bringing to an end the system of international operation of the Suez Canal.

Five years ago — It was reported in Washington that the frozen diplomatic climate surrounding the Berlin issue appeared to be thawing. The reports said both Moscow and Washington were starting to show their eagerness for negotiations over Berlin and Germany.

One year ago — U.S. chief delegate to the U.N., Arthur Goldberg, lashed out at Red China in his maiden speech to the U.N. General Assembly. He accused the Peking regime of striving to change world order by force and violence.

Freeze Ordered On Federal Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Acting on instructions from President Johnson, the Budget Bureau has ordered a freeze on adding new jobs to the federal payrolls through next June.

The Defense and Post Office departments, which employ more than 1.5 million civilians, and the Selective Service System were exempted from the economy move.

Officials said the Viet Nam war is responsible for exempting the Defense Department and Selective Service System, while the Post Office Department is not covered because of the increasingly large workload it carries.

Officials estimated the order would save about $250 million by not adding some 30,000 to 40,000 persons to federal payrolls. They said no one is expected to be fired because of the order.

Four Arrests

Two motorists were arrested Thursday night on driving charges.

Virgil Burks Jr., 326 Daniel, was stopped at Main and Malone and charged with careless and imprudent driving for allegedly taking off from a stop at a high rate of speed, police reported.

Ronnie D. Patterson of Essex, was charged with speeding on West Malone.

Caleb Oliver, 805 Delmar, and John K. Irwin, Dunn Hotel, were arrested Thursday night and charged with public intoxication.

Police also received one call Thursday night reporting a prowler in the 500 block of Matthews. No one was found in the area, police reported.

Police received a report from Mrs. W. Cecil Carter, 202 Petroleum, Thursday stating that her son's senior class ring was stolen at school Wednesday, police said.

Miss Gregory Dies Thursday

Miss Pearl Bessie Gregory, 76, of Morehouse, died at 10 a.m. Thursday in a Cape Girardeau hospital.

Born at Sikeston Sept. 29, 1889, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gregory.

Miss Gregory was a retired employe of the International Shoe Company.

Surviving are two brothers, Clyde Gregory, Morehouse, and Earl Gregory, Bloomfield; one sister, Mrs. Unice Sturgeon, Bloomfield.

Services will be in the Jackson Funeral Chapel Saturday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Jonn Cullins, officiating.

Burial will be in City cemetery.

duties, ya know. I haven't learned all my duties yet."

Although new in Sikeston, and new to the priesthood he was ordained in Rome March 5, 1966, Father Monaghan has assumed an active role as spiritual director of the Legion of Mary. The Legion of Mary is an organization of parish members who visit the ill and do other Christian work.

"People always ask me about the differences here," he said.

For one thing here, he continued, children mature sooner. They are more frank in asking questions and it makes for a good teacher - student relationship, he added.

Young people here marry earlier than in Ireland, he pointed out. The average age for a girl to be married there is about 21 and about 23 for a boy, he said.

"Another thing I noticed here are the funeral homes. There are no funeral homes in my country. There they have a wake. The dead person is laid out in his bed at home one day, and taken to the church the next day for services. Also, there is no embalming in Ireland," he stated.

Cars are much bigger here and gasoline is much cheaper. However, he added, the smaller European cars give about twice as much mileage.

Also in this country Father Monaghan commented: "I've found people don't want your money, they want your credit card."

The young priest completed four years of theology in Rome, and was there during the Ecumenical council sessions. He said it was quite a privilege to study there at the time and was happy with the results of the council.

It seemed to bring the church up to date, and has had good effects in breaking down old prejudices of Catholics and Protestants. It had a great unifying effect among representatives of all religions, he added.

Sikeston would probably seem a letdown to most readers after a person has spent six years in Rome.

Not so with the young priest. "I'm very happy to be here, rather than a larger city for my first assignment."

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is the predominant breed of beef cattle in the United States?

A—There are more Herefords, commercial and purebred, marketed every year than all other beef breeds combined.

Q—What is the rule regarding leap years?

A—Those years which are exactly divisible by four are leap years, except centesimal years. In such cases they are not leap years, unless they are exactly divisible by 400. Thus the year 1900 was not a leap year, but the year 2000 will be a leap year.

WESLEY METHODIST CHURCH

Wesley Methodist Church, First Methodist Church, and Smith Chapel Methodist Churches are all members of the Missouri East Annual Conference and the Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District - with the same Bishop and District Superintendent.

The tenets of Methodism appeared in the paper only a few weeks ago by Reverend Joseph H. Wagner, pastor of the First Church. Each church is free to direct the program of the church with the support and leadership in the great Connectional System. They embrace the philosophy that the church as an institution of LOVE, and that each member is called upon to be an agent of peace and good will with a dedicated and devoted life to Christ, the church and community.

Wesley has a thriving Church School, Woman's Society of Christian Service, Methodist Youth Fellowship, and Methodist Men's Club. Along with these organizations within the church comes the Commissions - Education, Stewardship and Finance, Missions, Christian Social Concerns, and Membership and Evangelism - then there are the Committees - Worship, Music, Communion, Hospital and Homes, Pastoral Relations and etc. All the work of each individual church is channeled through the Official Board and these Commissions and Committees.

Each minister lifts Christ up before his people as the Saviour, Redeemer, and example of devotion and dedication to the cause for which He died, and that this Christ is the Saviour of all mankind, and that all the saved, regardless of denomination, creed, race, or cast are brethern in this Christ.

Wesley Methodist Church expresses thanks to Rev. Floyd Brower, District Superintendent of Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District for his leadership and devotion to Wesley Church and to Rev. Jos. Wagner and the First Methodist Church the many expressions of kindness, gifts, and assistance in leadership. Also the assistance in the new addition which will give floor space - 68 by 34 feet or 2,312 square feet. This addition, which is being built today, will be a great blessing in the promotion of educational, social and general expansion of the church.

Wesley Methodist Church is organized, supported and directed by a large number of young married people, a lovely group of elderly couples, and middle-age people, a host of fine children and a fine youth group. They are all a friendly people and a large welcome is extended to the public.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

On Easter Sunday morning, 1939, the Rev. Herman W. Gockel resigned from his church in Evansville, Ind. Due to a throat affliction, it was the end of parish ministry for him. To many it would seem it was the end of his career as a minister. But not to Dr. Gockel, for he was determined to put "religion into everyday words for everyday people." Dr. Gockel's life is a great lesson in faith and courage.

Having always been interested in writing, he was soon in a new kind of ministry through newspaper columns, articles, books and hymns. He worked on the editorial staff of a number of Lutheran publications and helped found the St. Louis Lutheran newspaper in 1945. His zeal for reaching the people led him to TV. Since 1951 he has been the program director of the veteran TV religious dramatic series "This is the Life," now in its 15th year, produced by the Television Productions Board of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Dr. Gockel relinquished one congregation because he couldn't speak only to discover one of the world's largest congregations. Each week "This is the Life" under his spiritual guidance is seen on 375 stations throughout the United States and Canada. It reaches viewers in an increasing number of countries around the world and is carried on 22 overseas stations of the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service.

Area Awaits Cotton Picking

The Sikeston area State Employment service office seasonal labor force is awaiting cotton picking. A search over the area disclosed the bulk of labor is farm residents and families of farm workers and presently not available for out-of-area work.

The farm labor information station and rest camp, route two, served 392 migrants last week. Five were moving north to Wisconsin while eight were returning to Arkansas and 379 were enroute to their home state of Texas.

Cotton picking is getting off to a slow start due to adverse weather conditions throughout the year in the Kennett area. Some ginners have received only three or four bales. Extra heavy foliage will necessitate the use of defoliating chemicals for mechanized cotton pickers to be of much value.

Demand for seasonal farm workers continues to be heavy in the Cape Girardeau area.

Some scattered cotton picking is going on in the Poplar Bluff office area. Local labor is available to harvest this year's crop. There is no surplus labor available for referral.

There is very little farm activity going on in the Caruthersville area. A few bales of cotton have been picked and ginned. Most of the farmers are defoliating the bottom of the cotton plants to prevent loss from boll rot.

No migratory labor will be needed to pick cotton this year. A few workers are being referred to other areas.

Jackie Larsen Reigns

By WARREN SOKOLIS

DEXTER -- Jackie Larsen, Miss Dexter, was named Miss Stoddard County at the fair Thursday night.

Named second attendant was Janet King, Miss Bernie, and first attendant was Brenda Graham, Miss Bloomfield.

The 11 contestants were winners of various queen contests throughout the county during the past year.

Miss Larsen, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Larsen, is a senior at Dexter high school. Miss King, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James King, and Miss Graham, 17, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham.

The other two finalists were Sue Wills, Miss Advance, and Becky Larsen, Miss Dexter High School. Becky Larsen and Jackie Larsen are twin sisters. Crowning the queen was retiring Miss Stoddard County, Bonnie Blue.

Following the queen contest, the Little Miss Stoddard County contest was held. Winner was Lisa Curry, 5, Little Miss Dexter.

Lisa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felbert Curry. Also in the contest were Little Miss Bloomfield, Kathy Williams, and Little Miss Bernie, Donna Mitchell. Crowning the queen was retiring Little Miss Stoddard County, Claudia Davis.

Judges were Harold Dunn, Poplar Bluff, and James Beaird and Ray Clinton, both of Sikeston.

Winners of the parade float contest Thursday afternoon were Dexter FHA, first, and Bernie FHA, second, in the high school float competition, and Order of the Arrow, first, Rainbow girls, second, and Missouri Shorthorn Queen and the B and PW, tied for third, in the miscellaneous float division.

Prizes were $50 first, $25 second and $15 third in each division.

Tonight at 7 p.m. swine entries will be judged. At 8:30 p.m. the beef cattle will be judged, and at 9 p.m. the 4-H pig scramble will be held at the arena.

Saturday will be Dexter Homecoming Day with exchibits open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Judges To Pick Queen

From three to five out-of-town judges will choose the new Miss Sikeston tonight following the Sikeston - Charleston high school football game. The contest will take place on the platform on New Madrid street on the cotton carnival grounds.

The 22 contestants chosen to represent their homerooms in the high school will parade in formal wear across the stage, Sfc. A. B. Ledbetter, contest chairman, said.

Contestants will be judged on beauty, poise and carriage.

Hunter Phillips, chairman of the state tax commission in Jefferson City, will speak while the judges are making their decision.

Winner of the contest will receive in addition to her crown, trophy and bouquet of roses, gifts totaling about $300 in retail value from merchants.

The entrants are: Barbara Blacker, Sheila Berry, Sandy Clinton, Dixie Campbell, Sherry L. Frankum, Terry Crowe, Teresa Hammelman, Betty Hartlein, Cheryl Hurley, Charlotte Jones, Beth Marshall, Elizabeth Martin.

Buckners Store to Enlarge

Buckner-Ragsdale Co., 124 East Front, has acquired the building east of the present location, formerly occupied by the P.N. Hirsch Co. Both buildings will be remodeled and brought under one roof.

Floor space will be almost doubled when the remodeling is completed. The present Buckner Ragsdale Co. store is 40 feet by 120 feet and the old Hirsch building is almost the same size, Mrs. G. A. Lough, manager, secretary and treasurer, said today.

The added building will be used for the ladies department, Mrs. Lough said. Men's clothing, home furnishings and shoes will continue to be displayed in the present store building.

First step in the remodeling will be to add a new front to both buildings to make them look like one, Mrs. Lough said. The east wall of the present building will be removed.

The added section will be remodeled before the ladies department is moved into it. Then, remodeling will start on the present building, Mrs. Lough added.

The decision to enlarge present facilities was made for the convenience of the customers. Enlarging the store will enable the company to handle more goods, but essentially the same advertised products and quality merchandise will be offered, Mrs. Lough said.

J. A. Martin is assistant manager of the company.

The present store will remain open during remodeling.

Grand opening will be announced upon completion of the modernization.

Attorney Dawes Hurt in Mishap

George Dawes, attorney for the state highway department, was released Thursday from the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, following a single car accident Wednesday night.

He was returning from Lake Wappapello in fog, and failed to make a curve on highway PP, while traveling alone.

His car struck an embankment, knocking him unconscious. He regained consciousness and called Rolla Warren, who brought him to the hospital, where his injuries consisted of bruises on the head, arms and chest.

He is convalescing at his home, 718 Sikeston Blvd.

Priest Adjusts to Duties, Differences

Three Weeks in Sikeston fresh from six years of studies in preparation for the priesthood in Rome is hardly time to get settled, much less to become accustomed to the difference in the way of life here and in Europe.

But one of Sikeston's newcomers is making the adjustment. He is the Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan.

Father Monaghan is a wavy-haired, Irishman of 25. He is the second oldest child in a family of three children in central Ireland. His father is a civil and electrical engineer in private practice in his home town of Mulligan, population 7,000. But the pace there, even though it has become more progressive with more industries, is still much slower than in America.

"People don't seem to relax here," the young priest commented.

Comparing observations here and in Ireland, Father Monaghan said one of the most noticeable differences is the number of denominations. Ireland is about 98 per cent Catholic. In Sikeston there are 27 different religious denominations and the Catholic population here is about three per cent, he commented.

It is a different situation here, he said. Even in Rome, the country is about 85 per cent Catholic, he continued.

The difference is not at all unpleasant to the new priest.

"I find the people here very friendly," he said. "People of all denominations have gone out of their way to treat me nice."

Father Monaghan is a secular priest. He is working with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Walter J. McGrane in conducting the business of St. Francis Xavier parish.

"My duties?" he questioned in noticeable broque. "I teach the children religion in St. Francis Xavier school, grades 1 through 8, and I teach juniors and seniors at St. Mary's high school one hour each day Monday through Thursday in Charleston.

"I don't know if it would be correct to call the teaching my

Jail Breaker Nabbed

Scott County deputy sheriff Eddie Michael arrested a man wanted by Howell County authorities on charges of burglary and larceny and breaking jail Thursday night near a service station at Miner Switch, east of Sikeston.

The arrested man, Thomas G. Sarver, 23, was returned to Howell County authorities today, Michael said.

Sarver was caught entering a service station in West Plains. He broke jail and escaped in a pickup truck.

The truck was recovered in Morehouse Monday night.

Michael said Sarver admitted being wanted by Howell County authorities and told of breaking jail in Washington state after questioning Thursday night.

Sarver was questioned by Michael after a service station attendant call authorities to check out Sarver as a suspicious person. He was on foot when the arrest took place.

Hearnes Plays Down Role in Fishing Case

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today he took no part in stopping the arrest of William R. Clark, chairman of the Public Service Commission, for allegedly interfering with the action of two conservation agents Sept. 4.

"What's all this talk about a 'fix?'" he asked at his press conference. "I don't touch conservation agents ever."

Hearnes said he talked with Clark about the situation and Clark called the story false. Asked if he had given Clark a dressing down about the matter, the governor said "That's between him and me."

Two agents, Paul Plank and Harris White, checked two youths fishing from a private boat dock on the Lake of the Ozarks. One was Glennon T. Moran Jr., son of a former supervisor of liquor control. Moran Sr. now is the Democratic candidate for St. Louis County prosecutor.

The boys did not have licenses to fish and they later paid fines for fishing without licenses.

The agents said Clark was "belligerent, definitely aggressive" in his efforts to stop the arrest of the youths. Plank quoted Clark as saying "You're both pretty stupid. The whole damned outfit (Conservation Commission) is pretty stupid."

The agents reported the incident to William E. Towell, conservation director, and he relayed the report to Hearnes.

Fisher Named To Bank Post

ST. LOUIS -- Jack G. Butler, president of Bank of St. Louis, today announced the election of Leo A. Fisher to a newly created position of chairman of the executive committee.

Fisher investor, bank and planter, formerly served as chairman of the Missouri highway commission and the Missouri - Illinois Bi - State Development agency. He was a founder of the Bank of Bloomfield, and has served as one of its directors and officers since 1939.

Fisher's additional board members include General Bancshares Corp.; Bank of St. Louis; Bank Building and Equipment Corp.; Lindbergh Bank; Transit Casualty Co.; Juniper Oil and Gas Co., Denver; and Sikeston Compress and Warehouse company.

His club memberships include The Noonday club, The St. Louis club, Missouri Athletic club, the Media club; Forest Hills Country club, Sunset Hills Country club, The Riviera Country club in Coral Gables, Fla., and The Garden of the Gods clubs in Colorado Springs.

He lives at 5 Barclay Drive, Ladue.

New Presbyterian Minister

After a vacancy of almost one year, the Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church will have a new pastor. He is the Rev. Lindy M. Cannon.

The new minister and his family will move into the parsonage at 910 North Kingshighway Monday and will occupy the pulpit Oct. 2.

He replaces the Rev. F. Edward Watson, who resigned Oct. 15, 1965, to accept a Presbyterian pastorate in Marshall, Tex.

Cannon and his wife, Anna, have one child, a son, James, one.

The new minister comes to Sikeston from Mexico, Mo., where he served as assistant minister at the First Presbyterian Church since September of 1964. He was ordained to the ministry in June, 1965.

Mr. Cannon was born in Greenville, N.C., and moved to Texas after World War II. Mrs. Cannon was born in San Antonio, Tex. She is one of six children, and her father is the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Mineral Wells, Tex.

Both Mr. Cannon and his wife graduated with bachelor of arts degrees from Austin College in

Jackie Larsen Reigns

By WARREN SOKOLIS

DEXTER -- Jackie Larsen, Miss Dexter, was named Miss Stoddard County at the fair Thursday night.

Named second attendant was Janet King, Miss Bernie, and first attendant was Brenda Graham, Miss Bloomfield.

The 11 contestants were winners of various queen contests throughout the county during the past year.

Miss Larsen, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Larsen, is a senior at Dexter high school. Miss King, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James King, and Miss Graham, 17, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham.

The other two finalists were Sue Wills, Miss Advance, and Becky Larsen, Miss Dexter High School. Becky Larsen and Jackie Larsen are twin sisters. Crowning the queen was retiring Miss Stoddard County, Bonnie Blue.

Following the queen contest, the Little Miss Stoddard County contest was held. Winner was Lisa Curry, 5, Little Miss Dexter.

Lisa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felbert Curry. Also in the contest were Little Miss Bloomfield, Kathy Williams, and Little Miss Bernie, Donna Mitchell. Crowning the queen was retiring Little Miss Stoddard County, Claudia Davis.

Judges were Harold Dunn, Poplar Bluff, and James Beaird and Ray Clinton, both of Sikeston.

Winners of the parade float contest Thursday afternoon were Dexter FHA, first, and Bernie FHA, second, in the high school float competition, and Order of the Arrow, first, Rainbow girls, second, and Missouri Shorthorn Queen and the B and PW, tied for third, in the miscellaneous float division.

Prizes were $50 first, $25 second and $15 third in each division.

Tonight at 7 p.m. swine entries will be judged. At 8:30 p.m. the beef cattle will be judged, and at 9 p.m. the 4-H pig scramble will be held at the arena.

Saturday will be Dexter Homecoming Day with exchibits open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Judges To Pick Queen

From three to five out-of-town judges will choose the new Miss Sikeston tonight following the Sikeston - Charleston high school football game. The contest will take place on the platform on New Madrid street on the cotton carnival grounds.

The 22 contestants chosen to represent their homerooms in the high school will parade in formal wear across the stage, Sfc. A. B. Ledbetter, contest chairman, said.

Contestants will be judged on beauty, poise and carriage.

Hunter Phillips, chairman of the state tax commission in Jefferson City, will speak while the judges are making their decision.

Winner of the contest will receive in addition to her crown, trophy and bouquet of roses, gifts totaling about $300 in retail value from merchants.

The entrants are: Barbara Blacker, Sheila Berry, Sandy Clinton, Dixie Campbell, Sherry L. Frankum, Terry Crowe, Teresa Hammelman, Betty Hartlein, Cheryl Hurley, Charlotte Jones, Beth Marshall, Elizabeth Martin.

Attorney Dawes Hurt in Mishap

George Dawes, attorney for the state highway department, was released Thursday from the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, following a single car accident Wednesday night.

He was returning from Lake Wappapello in fog, and failed to make a curve on highway PP, while traveling alone.

His car struck an embankment, knocking him unconscious. He regained consciousness and called Rolla Warren, who brought him to the hospital, where his injuries consisted of bruises on the head, arms and chest.

He is convalescing at his home, 718 Sikeston Blvd.

Jail Breaker Nabbed

Scott County deputy sheriff Eddie Michael arrested a man wanted by Howell County authorities on charges of burglary and larceny and breaking jail Thursday night near a service station at Miner Switch, east of Sikeston.

The arrested man, Thomas G. Sarver, 23, was returned to Howell County authorities today, Michael said.

Sarver was caught entering a service station in West Plains. He broke jail and escaped in a pickup truck.

The truck was recovered in Morehouse Monday night.

Michael said Sarver admitted being wanted by Howell County authorities and told of breaking jail in Washington state after questioning Thursday night.

Sarver was questioned by Michael after a service station attendant call authorities to check out Sarver as a suspicious person. He was on foot when the arrest took place.

Motorists Fined At New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Magistrate court in session Monday and Tuesday, Judge Erie Wright presiding, had a high number of cases of improper registration and having no operator's license.

Albert Lee Thornton faced two charges, no operator's license and improper registration of a motor vehicle. His total fines and costs were $20.

George Bee Thompson's fine and costs amounted to $15 for having no operator's license.

John Wayne Smith, and Ted McIntire each paid $15 for improper registration.

John Elvin James paid a $5-fine and $20 in costs for improper registration.

Thomas L. Sparks paid a total of $20, fines and costs, on charges of careless and imprudent driving and failure to have an operator's license.

It cost Perry Leon Preslar $15 for failure to yield right of way and Harold G. Hagan was fined $25 plus $10 costs on speeding charge.

Hearnes Plays Down Role in Fishing Case

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today he took no part in stopping the arrest of William R. Clark, chairman of the Public Service Commission, for allegedly interfering with the action of two conservation agents Sept. 4.

"What's all this talk about a 'fix?' " he asked at his press conference. "I don't touch conservation agents ever."

Hearnes said he talked with Clark about the situation and Clark called the story false. Asked if he had given Clark a dressing down about the matter, the governor said "That's between him and me."

Two agents, Paul Plank and Harris White, checked two youths fishing from a private boat dock on the Lake of the Ozarks. One was Glennon T. Moran Jr., son of a former supervisor of liquor control. Moran Sr. now is the Democratic candidate for St. Louis County prosecutor.

The boys did not have licenses to fish and they later paid fines for fishing without licenses.

The agents said Clark was "belligerent, definitely aggressive" in his efforts to stop the arrest of the youths. Plank quoted Clark as saying "You're both pretty stupid. The whole damned outfit (Conservation Commission) is pretty stupid."

The agents reported the incident to William E. Towell, conservation director, and he relayed the report to Hearnes.

Buckners Store to Enlarge

Buckner-Ragsdale Co., 124 East Front, has acquired the building east of the present location, formerly occupied by the P.N. Hirsch Co. Both buildings will be remodeled and brought under one roof.

Floor space will be almost doubled when the remodeling is completed. The present Buckner Ragsdale Co. store is 40 feet by 120 feet and the old Hirsch building is almost the same size, Mrs. G. A. Lough, manager, secretary and treasurer, said today.

The added building will be used for the ladies department, Mrs. Lough said. Men's clothing, home furnishings and shoes will continue to be displayed in the present store building.

First step in the remodeling will be to add a new front to both buildings to make them look like one, Mrs. Lough said. The east wall of the present building will be removed.

The added section will be remodeled before the ladies department is moved into it. Then, remodeling will start on the present building, Mrs. Lough added.

The decision to enlarge present facilities was made for the convenience of the customers. Enlarging the store will enable the company to handle more goods, but essentially the same advertised products and quality merchandise will be offered, Mrs. Lough said.

J. A. Martin is assistant manager of the company.

The present store will remain open during remodeling.

Grand opening will be announced upon completion of the modernization.

Priest Adjusts to Duties, Differences

Three Weeks in Sikeston fresh from six years of studies in preparation for the priesthood in Rome is hardly time to get settled, much less to become accustomed to the difference in the way of life here and in Europe.

But one of Sikeston's newcomers is making the adjustment. He is the Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan.

Father Monaghan is a wavy-haired, Irishman of 25. He is the second oldest child in a family of three children in central Ireland. His father is a civil and electrical engineer in private practice in his home town of Mulligan, population 7,000. But the pace there, even though it has become more progressive with more industries, is still much slower than in America.

"People don't seem to relax here," the young priest commented.

Comparing observations here and in Ireland, Father Monaghan said one of the most noticeable differences is the number of denominations. Ireland is about 98 per cent Catholic. In Sikeston there are 27 different religious denominations and the Catholic population here is about three per cent, he commented.

It is a different situation here, he said. Even in Rome, the country is about 85 per cent Catholic, he continued.

The difference is not at all unpleasant to the new priest.

"I find the people here very friendly," he said. "People of all denominations have gone out of their way to treat me nice."

Father Monaghan is a secular priest. He is working with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Walter J. McGrane in conducting the business of St. Francis Xavier parish.

"My duties?" he questioned in noticeable broque. "I teach the children religion in St. Francis Xavier school, grades 1 through 8, and I teach juniors and seniors at St. Mary's high school one hour each day Monday through Thursday in Charleston.

"I don't know if it would be correct to call the teaching my

Judge Reduces Driving Charge

A charge of driving while intoxicated was reduced to a careless and imprudent driving by Judge E. R. Schrader Thursday night in City Court.

James A. Burton, North Handy St., loitering, fined $24.

James R. Duncan, 310 Prosperity, careless and imprudent driving, fined $15. A charge of driving without a city license against Duncan was dismissed.

Linda Brown, 207 Greer, excessive speeding, fined $26.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

NATIONAL 4-H WEEK

National 4-H Week will be observed throughout the country from Sept. 24 through October 1. Recognition will be given to the achievements of nearly 2.25 million boys and girls who participate in the activities of some 96,000 4-H clubs. Organized for young people between the ages of 9-19 in cities, towns, suburbs and rural areas, 4-H clubs, carry on a wide variety of educational projects in civic and community service, in farming, homemaking and personal improvement. The goal of developing good citizenship is foremost in all 4-H programs. This goal is emphasized by the national 4-H emblem which stands for the pledge: "My Head to clearer thinking, My Heart to greater loyalty, My Hands to larger service, My Health to better living, for my club, my community and my country."

By this pledge, millions of young boys and girls have developed character, talents and skills which today make them better citizens. National 4-H Week deserves the support, cooperation and respect of every citizen.

CURTAIN RISING

For all intents and purposes, the 1966-67 Broadway season begins on Thursday (Sept. 22), with the presentation of Edward Albee's A Delicate Balance.

THE FABULOUS INVALID is in better shape than most of its relatives want to admit. Variety lists 38 dramatic and musical stage shows with definite dates for the 1966-67 Broadway season.

Certainly the initial interest centers about a show called A Delicate Balance. It is the work of Edward Albee, who has been represented on the New York stage in each of the past five years and who is certainly one of the most serious, prolific -- and sometimes trying -- of playwrights now practicing. Hardly of secondary interest is the fact that it will be the first presentation reviewed for the N. Y. Times by Walter Kerr, a benefice from the late Herald Tribune.

Kerr is, in the words of the man he succeeds, Stanley Kauffman, "the most famous, widely admired critic in the country." But Kerr has not always been the most influential critic. The man who hurls the critical thunderbolts is always the man who writes for the N.Y. Times, or at least so runs the devout belief of Shubert Alley.

THE BROADWAY AMBIENCE of recent years has not been exactly great. As a general rule, the hits have been imports from Britain, and that goes to an extent for musicals. Kerr observes: "Certainly the theatre needs to shake itself awake, by whatever means; certainly we need to reexamine not only the nature of words but the nature of our natures if we are to end the sleepwalking that has been our reflexive activity for so long." (You find your way out of Kerr sentences, as Robert Benchley once remarked in another context, by looking for the moss which grows on the north side of the words.)

Yet in any dollars and cents view, all this doomsaying doesn't make much sense. Witness the fact that at the end of the 1965-66 season, Variety reported: "The Broadway legit season. . . .was statistically impressive, artistically spotty, and topically lively. As always, the theatre was beset with problems, and, as usual, it survived them."

Last season was financially record-breaking, with the Broadway gross of almost $54 million, as against the all-time 1964-1965 record of almost $50 - 1/2 million. Of 52 commercial productions, 15 or 16 made a profit, or almost one in three. The ratio in other recent years had been almost one in six.

The gross on the road was only the fourth best on record -- about $32.2 million. But Variety found consolation for this. The bountiful crop of Broadway hits last season makes the coming year loom as "the biggest road season in some years."

OF THE BROADWAY SHOWS already inked in for next season, a great many are revivals, from "You Can't Take It With You" and "Rose Tattoo" to "School for Scandal" and "The Merchant of Venice." A few, like "We Have Always Lived in the Castle," are adaptations from other media. "I Do! I Do!" is a musical version of an older comedy, "The Four-Poster." What Broadway desperately has needed for several years has been serious drama written directly for the stage.

Broadway lost a promising show when the National Broadcasting Company paid $112,500 to William Hanley to produce his Flesh and Blood on television next winter. The play could, of course, eventually reach the legitimate stage. In the meantime, perhaps the fabulous invalid should stop looking under the bed and begin observing what its relatives, TV and the movies, are doing.

The average man is generally out of harmony: He feels particularly like working when he is loafing.

The news that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant will be welcomed by all Americans interested in the health and welfare of the world organization as an instrument for peace and understanding.

He wants to quit but has decided to continue until the end of the year if members of the United Nations fail to name a successor when his term expires Nov. 3.

The announcement gives an air of stability and assurance to Tuesday's opening of the 21st session of the U. N. general assembly.

The United States has not always agreed on U. N. secretary-generals and procedures but they both wanted U Thant to stay on.

This is their response to a rule by the Burmese diplomat from the start to be certain that the United States and Soviet Union agree on any U.N. procedure destined to succeed. Some of his predecessors were not so discreet.

By scrupiously following this rule he steered the organization away from any major eruptions involving the two major world powers, whose cooperation is necessary for the success of any U.N. undertaking.

Unfortunately, the same elements that contributed to this success in diplomacy are the root of his desire to resign from the office. He is deeply distressed at the lack of effectiveness of the U.N. He desires a U.N. with greater vitality and purpose. He regrets the lack of progress on disarmament, the failure to keep the U.N. solvent, the continued exclusion of Red China in an organization based on the principle of universality and he deplores the cruelty of the war in Viet Nam.

He has tried without success to be an effective intermediary to bring about a conclusion of the Viet Nam conflict.

This quiet, blunt man was virtually unknown outside U.N. corridors when he became the successor of the late Dag Hammarskjold.

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev then was determined to derail the U.N. secretariate by subordinating it to troika rule. Red China and Indonesia were plotting for a rival organization to the U.N.

Because of U Thant's dedication and the trust that he inspired, the U. N. did not fall apart when Hammarskjold was so tragically and abruptly removed in a plane crash.

Under the circumstances holding the U.N. together has been no small accomplishment.

Exactly one day after our columnist Victor Riesel returned from interviewing national leaders on both sides of the Iron Curtain, he dug up a story which beat the Washington press corps.

It was Riesel who learned from his many contacts exactly what President Johnson had said of Vice President Hubert Humphrey at an off-the-record dinner on the night of August 31. That night the President remarked that as long as he was in the White House he wanted Mr. Humphrey at his side, and that talk of his dropping him as a vice presidential candidate in '68 was nonsense.

That column was written Tuesday, Sept. 13. Five days later Mr. Humphrey publicly corroborated the story. The vice president's remarks were printed on many front pages across the land.

Seeds in watermelons, paper panties on lamb chops, $10 haircuts for French poodles and miniskirts on maidens over 10 or matrons over 40.

Stupid teen-agers who call their parents stupid.

Movies in which the hero is a drug addict and the heroine's biggest problem is that she has gambled and lost at a racetrack the $100 she had borrowed to make a down payment on an abortion.

Singing at the opening night performance of the Metropolitan Opera. All that yammering onstage tends to distract the society audience from its main goal of seeing who's wearing what.

Stenographers with fingernails two inches longer than those of Dr. Fu Manchu.

Any new television program about quaint Southern hillbillies written by a scriptwriter who once spent a weekend in the Catskill foothills.

Penny weighing machines. They either lie about your weight, or don't work at all.

Anybody who wants you to contribute to his worthy cause, but won't give a nickel to the even more worthy cause you're collecting for.

Coin vending machines that now charge 15 cents for a candy bar smaller than you used to get for a nickel. Folding umbrellas that somehow will never unfold once it starts to rain.

Guys who try to read your newspaper over your shoulder on the bus — and get annoyed if you don't turn the pages quickly enough. Strangers who sidle up to you at cocktail parties and ask if you've made a will, and then wind up trying to sell you an insurance policy. Middle-aged blondes at cocktail parties who try to gain attention by looking at everyone's hands and telling their fortunes.

Any card with holes punched in it that comes by mail. It can only bring trouble.

LINERS THAT FLY

The airplane appears to be doing to the ocean liner what it has already done to the long-distance passenger train.

As recently as 1957, the transatlantic passenger business was about equally divided between planes and ships. Then came the jets. Last year they handled 86 per cent of all transatlantic bookings.

Even stiffer competition is in store for the shipping lines. The emphasis in jets of the near future will be on providing more and more luxurious accommodations and amenities for their passengers.

Although the giant Boeing 747 will be able to carry nearly 500 passengers, the company is planning on an average of 360, which leaves a lot of room for innovations in interior design.

Under consideration are such ideas as compartmentalization, with a variety of decorative styles in the compartments, a small movie theater adjoining a library, a nursery, conference rooms. There could even be two staterooms housing four passengers each on an upper deck.

There are as yet no plans for such things as swimming pools, ballrooms, shuffleboard decks or guided tours of the engine room. But don't rule them out.

WARNING FLAGS

The warning flags are going up. They have to do with whether this country can spend huge additional sums for defense, because of the massive acceleration of the war in Vietnam, and at the same time carry on welfare programs of unprecedented scope and cost without courting the most serious kind of trouble.

Senator Russell of Georgia has expressed the view that there are even greater dangers of inflation now than at the time of the Korean War. Senator Morton of Kentucky points out that ". . . .the Siamese twin of huge deficit financing is inflation," and he has all the historical precedent anyone could want to support that statement. Representative Laird suggests that there should be a re-evaluation of proposed appropriations totaling some $8 billion for new domestic programs which are primarily of a welfare nature.

More and more thoughtful observers, in and out of Congress, are expressing similar fears and concerns. There is a theory that all this spending will generate vast new tax revenues and so minimize the deficits. But it is only a theory, and unproven.

What has been proven is that when we attempt to buy more guns and provide more butter at the same time the dollar's buying power is battered down and down. Then the people of small means -- whom the welfare programs are supposed to help -- are the hardest hit. Is that tragedy due to recur once more?

"Woodrow," said Uncle Jeff to his son, "we'd better get shed of Sam, the bull. He jus' stands around all day, with his head and tail a-hangin'. He ain't good for nothin' any more."

"Now, wait, paw," pleaded Woodrow, "maybe the veterinarian can do him some good."

So the vet was called. He looked ol' Sam over very carefully, then removed a quart bottle of greenish fluid from his little black bag and poured it in the watering trough.

Sam drank long and deep. Stood quite still for a moment. Then a gleam came into his eyes. His head and tail shot up. He made a few fast running circles, leaped the pasture fence, and made hurried "visitations" to 10 cows in succession.

"Derned if I know," said Uncle Jeff, "but it tastes like peppermint!"

OUGHT TO BE EASY

While walking along a creek bank, a man came across a young fellow lying lazily under a tree with a fishing line in the water, on which the cork was bobbing frantically. "Hey, you've got a bite!"

"Yeah," drawled the fisherman. "Would you mind pulling it out?"

The walker did so, only to have the recumbent one ask, "Would you mind taking the fish off, rebaiting the hook, and tossing it back in the creek?"

This was done, and the man commented jokingly, "As lazy as you are, you ought to have some kids to do these things for you."

"Not a bad idea," yawned the fisherman. "Got any idea where I could find a pregnant woman?"

"THEY"--SEMI-ANONYMOUS

There is ideology even in pronouns. "I" and "you" are the watchwords of freedom and individualism. "We" may be the mark of collectivism. "They", a fearful, watchful, anonymous and uncontrollable "they", is often the brand of dictatorship.

We have all encountered the faintly disturbing use of "they" to refer to people or society in general, as in what "they think" or what "they say". The timid and the fearful are convinced they must conform to this vague collective dictate.

"They" becomes much more ominious when it begins to refer to public authorities, to government. "Will they let you do it?" is a question that should be a veritable red flag of danger to every man who believes in individual liberty. Destructive acts of course must be prohibited by law. But when officialdom in general has the power, purely by its own discretion, to allow an action or forbid it, the twilight of freedom is at hand.

The man who is proud of himself and his productive capacity, who cherishes his liberty and his initiative, will never be put off by what "they think" and he will reject with every fiber of his being the idea that any official has a right to control his life. But if the official commands irresistible force with an appearance of legality, he can have his way.

Defenders of freedom should urge that the looming, anonymous "they" be given its proper name where government is concerned, so that the source of fear and force may be clearly recognized, and curbed while there is still time. HLH.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This weekend President Lyndon B. Johnson will have served 1,037 days -- exactly the same time as John F. Kennedy. And if a contemporary historian who records events as they happen today may venture a judgment, Lyndon Johnson has chalked up a record in these 1,037 days which would make him one of our greatest Presidents were it not for one thing. He has got us bogged down in one of the most unpopular wars in our 190 years as a nation.

Historians, of course, look beyond a man's TV image in gauging his record. They do not worry about whether he holds press conferences, or stages glamorized weddings for his daughter, or whether his voice has a Texas accent. They overlooked the uncouth ways of Abraham Lincoln, which in his day nettled Washington society just as Washington society grimaces over the unpolished language of the present "cotton pickin'" man in the White House.

Historians, looking at the final results, will find that LBJ picked up the Kennedy program when it was hopelessly foundering, reinforced it, added some ideas of his own, and rammed it through congress as no President, not even his friend Franklin Roosevelt, had even been able to do before.

Jonnson, the first southern President in a hundred years, a man identified with Texas oil tycoons, walked up to the gaming table of politics and bet all his chips on the common man.

ACHIEVEMENT AND HATRED

No President in history, certainly not since Lincoln, has done so much for the Negro and reaped so much hatred in return. Both Eisenhower and Kennedy had paid lip service to the supreme court's school desegregation decision, but not much more. Johnson passed a school education bill generous to integrated schools but tough on those still segregated. This is what Gov. Wallace of Alabama is tearing his hair about. And it's what has the state of Georgia almost ready to elect a Republican governor.

Johnson's aid - to - education bill has done more for public schools than has been done by anyone since the days of Horace Mann. On top of this he passed a higher education bill to bolster colleges and universities. He picked up medicare, which other Presidents had been talking about for 20 years, and put it into law. Furthermore, its enforcement is integrating the hospitals of the south.

He has passed an auto safety law, a mine safety law, a cigarette safety law -- which no President even thought of doing before. Most revolutionary of all, he has passed a rent subsidy bill, which some of his predecessors would have called pure socialism. But Johnson recognized that slums must be cured if the big city is to survive. To that end he also passed a transportation act to help commuters, and has proposed -- though not passed -- an open housing bill to permit Negroes to move out of the slums.

Finally, Johnson saw that this country could not exist half in economic slavery and half free, so he passed an anti - poverty bill. This has been ridiculed and criticized. It may have been too little, and it did come late. But it has begun to take hold. Franklin Roosevelt, with all his skill, all his charm, and all the desperate drive of the great depression behind him, never passed a program anywhere near approaching this. John F. Kennedy never envisaged it and never could have passed it. Johnson, for all his cotton pickin' ways, did.

THE UNDERMINING BY WAR

That program, however, may be jeopardized by the war in Viet Nam and all that goes with it -- inflation, high interest rates, and the drop in political popularity.

Johnson, of course, inherited the war. But he did not improve it by also inheriting and promoting the No. 1 Hawk adviser of the Kennedy administration.

In the fall of 1961 Kennedy sent Walt Rostow, his foreign affairs adviser, and Gen. Maxwell Taylor, his military adviser, to South Viet Nam to recommend what he should do about the minor war he had inherited from Eisenhower. Rostow studied the situation, retreated to Baguio, the Philippine summer resort, and wrote a report recommending that Kennedy send one whole division to South Viet Nam.

At that time he had between 1,500 to 1,800 troops in Viet Nam, some of them disguised as mountain technicians in order ostensibly to stay within the 1,000 - troops limitation of the Geneva treaty.

Rostow wanted to increase this to around 18,000 men and disguise them as engineers to cope with floods on the Mekong River -- again to subvert the Geneva Treaty.

Gen. Taylor signed the report -- his first step as a Hawk. Later Kennedy sent the 18,000 troops and more, though not disguised as engineers.

President Johnson now has the man who initially got Kennedy deeply involved in Viet Nam -- Walt Rostow -- as his chief adviser. In fact, Johnson has promoted him from the state department to the White House, where he makes more recommendations for more and deeper troop commitments.

LBJ'S WEAK SPOT

All this hits at the weakest spot in Johnson's otherwise admirable qualifications as President, namely his lack of experience in foreign affairs. Here he is a prisoner of his state department and men like Rostow, promoted from the state department.

The state department has the habit of looking not at the long - range problems of the Presidency but at day - to - day international bureaucracy. Franklin Roosevelt spent much of his three terms bucking the state department. His pupil Lyndon Johnson has gone alone with the state department.

Nevertheless, Lyndon Johnson knows that he must get peace in Viet Nam or jeopardize all his great domestic accomplishments. And he has tried. He has tried much more than the American public realizes.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Net Network of Federal Grand Juries Dig Into Mob Operations on Labor Front in 12 Cities.

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- With the aid of scores of FBI teams, the Justice Dept. has unleashed an unseasonable heat wave. Immaculate and traditionally imperturbable executives of a network of criminal syndicates are sweating it out in 12 major cities across the country from high-rise Manhattan to Miami's beaches and Los Angeles' boulevards.

The intensity of the Organized Crime section drives, some old and secretive, some new, is due to the sudden release of manpower from a burdensome summer chore--the cleansing of Justice Dept. records of information obtained by wiretapping and eavesdropping "bugs." Much of the summer was spent on the files to avoid their being "contaminated" by what would be considered unusual evidence in court--and which has been criticized by a Senate committee.

At least 20 grand juries now are hearing dramatic evidence from witnesses who are "opening up" on everything from the use of foreign banks in labor rackets, extortion, invasion of businesses by notorious Cosa Nostra characters to multi-million dollar shakedowns.

Probes in New York by the crusading U. S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau and in Northern New Jersey by the equally dedicated Federal "D.A." Dave Satz easily are the most startling and intriguing. In these areas it isn't a matter of whether there will be indictments of labor racketeers, but of how many indictments there will be.

But there are other important grand jury probes digging into mob muck in Oklahoma, Illinois, California (Los Angeles), Ohio, Michigan (fringes of Detroit), Virginia and Minnesota, it can be reported. There are other FBI probes, not yet in the grand jury stage, in Indiana and Missouri.

Easily the newest mob twist is developing in the U.S. Southern District of New York where Mr. Morgenthau has at least five grand juries hacking away at the underworld structure. He has been digging deeply for many months now into the mobsters' use of foreign "anonymous numbered accounts" banks in Panama and Switzerland to evade not only the income tax and financial securities laws, but the Federal Labor Statutes as well.

Corporation A, either a mob business or merely some firm needing cash, makes contact with any one of a number of lawyers or brokers who have connections with some labor-management pension funds. The company needs the money badly and is willing to pay a 10 per cent commission to the contact man. He puts the deal through.

Then, says he, pay me one per cent here -- and deposit nine per cent in such and such Swiss or Panamanian bank where "my partner" has an anonymous numbered account. It turns out that the "partner" is a union official or one of its pension fund trustees.

The trustee worked the deal with the lawyer or broker. There are many variations on the theme. Virtually all of them violate sections of the Taft Hartley or the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act.

The news on this front will break shortly enough--as it will across the Hudson River in Northern New Jersey. There the Justice Dept.'s Organized Crime section now headed by a professional law enforcement career man, Henry "Pete" Peterson, has concentrated an imposing force of diverse agents from several departments -- Labor, Justice, Treasury (Internal Revenue Service) --and, of course, the FBI.

In addition to Mr. Satz, there are three attorneys from the Organized Crime section. Their probe is the "hottest" thing in the investigation arena today. It goes right into the construction field.

There have been shakedowns reminiscent of earlier days when millions of dollars in small bills, old and well-worn, changed hands. Some business agents have been clipping as much as $60,000 to $70,000 a year.

What has appalled the probers is the ensuing cost to the consumer as a result of the skyrocketing expense of constructing the installations involved.

In the course of the investigation the federal authorities have come across old-fashioned terror which the public assumed went out with brass knucles and leadfilled baseball bats. Mind you, this did not spring from the underworld, but from a network of union officials who have consistently told the government to go to hell -- and who have refused to cooperate with the authorities on any important level.

NATIONAL 4-H WEEK

National 4-H Week will be observed throughout the country from Sept. 24 through October 1. Recognition will be given to the achievements of nearly 2.25 million boys and girls who participate in the activities of some 96,000 4-H clubs. Organized for young people between the ages of 9-19 in cities, towns, suburbs and rural areas, 4-H clubs, carry on a wide variety of educational projects in civic and community service, in farming, homemaking and personal improvement. The goal of developing good citizenship is foremost in all 4-H programs. This goal is emphasized by the national 4-H emblem which stands for the pledge: "My Head to clearer thinking, My Heart to greater loyalty, My Hands to larger service, My Health to better living, for my club, my community and my country."

By this pledge, millions of young boys and girls have developed character, talents and skills which today make them better citizens. National 4-H Week deserves the support, cooperation and respect of every citizen.

CURTAIN RISING

For all intents and purposes, the 1966-67 Broadway season begins on Thursday (Sept. 22), with the presentation of Edward Albee's A Delicate Balance.

THE FABULOUS INVALID is in better shape than most of its relatives want to admit. Variety lists 38 dramatic and musical stage shows with definite dates for the 1966-67 Broadway season.

Certainly the initial interest centers about a show called A Delicate Balance. It is the work of Edward Albee, who has been represented on the New York stage in each of the past five years and who is certainly one of the most serious, prolific -- and sometimes trying -- of playwrights now practicing. Hardly of secondary interest is the fact that it will be the first presentation reviewed for the N. Y. Times by Walter Kerr, a benefice from the late Herald Tribune.

Kerr is, in the words of the man he succeeds, Stanley Kauffman, "the most famous, widely admired critic in the country." But Kerr has not always been the most influential critic. The man who hurls the critical thunderbolts is always the man who writes for the N.Y. Times, or at least so runs the devout belief of Shubert Alley.

THE BROADWAY AMBIENCE of recent years has not been exactly great. As a general rule, the hits have been imports from Britain, and that goes to an extent for musicals. Kerr observes: "Certainly the theatre needs to shake itself awake, by whatever means; certainly we need to reexamine not only the nature of words but the nature of our natures if we are to end the sleepwalking that has been our reflexive activity for so long." (You find your way out of Kerr sentences, as Robert Benchley once remarked in another context, by looking for the moss which grows on the north side of the words.)

Yet in any dollars and cents view, all this doomsaying doesn't make much sense. Witness the fact that at the end of the 1965-66 season, Variety reported: "The Broadway legit season. . . .was statistically impressive, artistically spotty, and topically lively. As always, the theatre was beset with problems, and, as usual, it survived them."

Last season was financially record-breaking, with the Broadway gross of almost $54 million, as against the all-time 1964-1965 record of almost $50 - 1/2 million. Of 52 commercial productions, 15 or 16 made a profit, or almost one in three. The ratio in other recent years had been almost one in six.

The gross on the road was only the fourth best on record -- about $32.2 million. But Variety found consolation for this. The bountiful crop of Broadway hits last season makes the coming year loom as "the biggest road season in some years."

OF THE BROADWAY SHOWS already inked in for next season, a great many are revivals, from "You Can't Take It With You" and "Rose Tattoo" to "School for Scandal" and "The Merchant of Venice." A few, like "We Have Always Lived in the Castle," are adaptations from other media. "I Do! I Do!" is a musical version of an older comedy, "The Four-Poster." What Broadway desperately has needed for several years has been serious drama written directly for the stage.

Broadway lost a promising show when the National Broadcasting Company paid $112,500 to William Hanley to produce his Flesh and Blood on television next winter. The play could, of course, eventually reach the legitimate stage. In the meantime, perhaps the fabulous invalid should stop looking under the bed and begin observing what its relatives, TV and the movies, are doing.

The average man is generally out of harmony: He feels particularly like working when he is loafing.

The news that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant will be welcomed by all Americans interested in the health and welfare of the world organization as an instrument for peace and understanding.

He wants to quit but has decided to continue until the end of the year if members of the United Nations fail to name a successor when his term expires Nov. 3.

The announcement gives an air of stability and assurance to Tuesday's opening of the 21st session of the U. N. general assembly.

The United States has not always agreed on U. N. secretary-generals and procedures but they both wanted U Thant to stay on.

This is their response to a rule by the Burmese diplomat from the start to be certain that the United States and Soviet Union agree on any U.N. procedure destined to succeed. Some of his predecessors were not so discreet.

By scruplously following this rule he steered the organization away from any major eruptions involving the two major world powers, whose cooperation is necessary for the success of any U.N. undertaking.

Unfortunately, the same elements that contributed to this success in diplomacy are the root of his desire to resign from the office. He is deeply distressed at the lack of effectiveness of the U.N. He desires a U.N. with greater vitality and purpose. He regrets the lack of progress on disarmament, the failure to keep the U.N. solvent, the continued exclusion of Red China in an organization based on the principle of universality and he deplores the cruelty of the war in Viet Nam.

He has tried without success to be an effective intermediary to bring about a conclusion of the Viet Nam conflict.

This quiet, blunt man was virtually unknown outside U.N. corridors when he became the successor of the late Dag Hammarskjold.

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev then was determined to derail the U.N. secretariate by subordinating it to troika rule. Red China and Indonesia were plotting for a rival organization to the U.N.

Because of U Thant's dedication and the trust that he inspired, the U. N. did not fall apart when Hammarskjold was so tragically and abruptly removed in a plane crash.

Exactly one day after our columnist Victor Riesel returned from interviewing national leaders on both sides of the Iron Curtain, he dug up a story which beat the Washington press corps.

It was Riesel who learned from his many contacts exactly what President Johnson had said of Vice President Hubert Humphrey at an off-the-record dinner on the night of August 31. That night the President remarked that as long as he was in the White House he wanted Mr. Humphrey at his side, and that talk of his dropping him as a vice presidential candidate in '68 was nonsense.

That column was written Tuesday, Sept. 13. Five days later Mr. Humphrey publicly corroborated the story. The vice president's remarks were printed on many front pages across the land.

LINERS THAT FLY

The airplane appears to be doing to the ocean liner what it has already done to the long-distance passenger train.

As recently as 1957, the transatlantic passenger business was about equally divided between planes and ships. Then came the jets. Last year they handled 86 per cent of all transatlantic bookings.

Even stiffer competition is in store for the shipping lines. The emphasis in jets of the near future will be on providing more and more luxurious accommodations and amenities for their passengers.

Although the giant Boeing 747 will be able to carry nearly 500 passengers, the company is planning on an average of 360, which leaves a lot of room for innovations in interior design.

Under consideration are such ideas as compartmentalization, with a variety of decorative styles in the compartments, a small movie theater adjoining a library, a nursery, conference rooms. There could even be two staterooms housing four passengers each on an upper deck.

There are as yet no plans for such things as swimming pools, ballrooms, shuffleboard decks or guided tours of the engine room. But don't rule them out.

WARNING FLAGS

The warning flags are going up. They have to do with whether this country can spend huge additional sums for defense, because of the massive acceleration of the war in Vietnam, and at the same time carry on welfare programs of unprecedented scope and cost without courting the most serious kind of trouble.

Senator Russell of Georgia has expressed the view that there are even greater dangers of inflation now than at the time of the Korean War. Senator Morton of Kentucky points out that " . . . .the Siamese twin of huge deficit financing is inflation," and he has all the historical precedent anyone could want to support that statement. Representative Laird suggests that there should be a re-evaluation of proposed appropriations totaling some $8 billion for new domestic programs which are primarily of a welfare nature.

More and more thoughtful observers, in and out of Congress, are expressing similar fears and concerns. There is a theory that all this spending will generate vast new tax revenues and so minimize the deficits. But it is only a theory, and unproven.

What has been proven is that when we attempt to buy more guns and provide more butter at the same time the dollar's buying power is battered down and down. Then the people of small means -- whom the welfare programs are supposed to help -- are the hardest hit. Is that tragedy due to recur once more?

Kennedy never envisaged it and never could have passed it. Johnson, for all his cotton pickin' ways, did.

THE UNDERMINING BY WAR

That program, however, may be jeopardized by the war in Viet Nam and all that goes with it -- inflation, high interest rates, and the drop in political popularity.

Johnson, of course, inherited the war. But he did not improve it by also inheriting and promoting the No. 1 Hawk adviser of the Kennedy administration.

In the fall of 1961 Kennedy sent Walt Rostow, his foreign affairs adviser, and Gen. Maxwell Taylor, his military adviser, to South Viet Nam to recommend what he should do about the minor war he had inherited from Eisenhower. Rostow studied the situation, retreated to Baguio, the Philippine summer resort, and wrote a report recommending that Kennedy send one whole division to South Viet Nam.

At that time he had between 1,500 to 1,800 troops in Viet Nam, some of them disguised as mountain technicians in order ostensibly to stay within the 1,000 - troops limitation of the Geneva treaty.

Rostow wanted to increase this to around 18,000 men and disguise them as engineers to cope with floods on the Mekong River -- again to subvert the Geneva Treaty.

Gen. Taylor signed the report -- his first step as a Hawk. Later Kennedy sent the 18,000 troops and more, though not disguised as engineers.

President Johnson now has the man who initially got Kennedy deeply involved in Viet Nam -- Walt Rostow -- as his chief adviser. In fact, Johnson has promoted him from the state department to the White House, where he makes more recommendations for more and deeper troop commitments.

LBJ'S WEAK SPOT

All this hits at the weakest spot in Johnson's otherwise admirable qualifications as President, namely his lack of experience in foreign affairs. Here he is a prisoner of his state department and men like Rostow, promoted from the state department.

The state department has the habit of looking not at the long - range problems of the Presidency but at day - to - day international bureaucracy. Franklin Roosevelt spent much of his three terms bucking the state department. His pupil Lyndon Johnson has gone alone with the state department.

Nevertheless, Lyndon Johnson knows that he must get peace in Viet Nam or jeopardize all his great domestic accomplishments. And he has tried. He has tried much more than the American public realizes.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Net Network of Federal Grand Juries Dig Into Mob Operations on Labor Front in 12 Cities.

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- With the aid of scores of FBI teams, the Justice Dept. has unleashed an unseasonable heat wave. Immaculate and traditionally imperturbable executives of a network of criminal syndicates are sweating it out in 12 major cities across the country from high-rise Manhattan to Miami's beaches and Los Angeles' boulevards.

The intensity of the Organized Crime section drives, some old and secretive, some new, is due to the sudden release of manpower from a burdensome summer chore--the cleansing of Justice Dept. records of information obtained by wiretapping and eavesdropping "bugs." Much of the summer was spent on the files to avoid their being "contaminated" by what would be considered unusual evidence in court--and which has been criticized by a Senate committee.

At least 20 grand juries now are hearing dramatic evidence from witnesses who are "opening up" on everything from the use of foreign banks in labor rackets, extortion, invasion of businesses by notorious Cosa Nostra characters to multi-million dollar shakedowns.

Probes in New York by the crusading U. S. Attorney Robert Morgenthau and in Northern New Jersey by the equally dedicated Federal "D.A." Dave Satz easily are the most startling and intriguing. In these areas it isn't a matter of whether there will be indictments of labor racketeers, but of how many indictments there will be.

But there are other important grand jury probes digging into mob muck in Oklahoma, Illinois, California (Los Angeles), Ohio, Michigan (fringes of Detroit), Virginia and Minnesota, it can be reported. There are other FBI probes, not yet in the grand jury stage, in Indiana and Missouri.

Easily the newest mob twist is developing in the U.S. Southern District of New York where Mr. Morgenthau has at least five grand juries hacking away at the underworld structure. He has been digging deeply for many months now into the mobsters' use of foreign "anonymous numbered accounts" banks in Panama and Switzerland to evade not only the income tax and financial securities laws, but the Federal Labor Statutes as well.

Corporation A, either a mob business or merely some firm needing cash, makes contact with any one of a number of lawyers or brokers who have connections with some labor-management pension funds. The company needs the money badly and is willing to pay a 10 per cent commission to the contact man. He puts the deal through.

Then, says he, pay me one per cent here -- and deposit nine per cent in such and such Swiss or Panamanian bank where "my partner" has an anonymous numbered account. It turns out that the "partner" is a union official or one of its pension fund trustees.

The trustee worked the deal with the lawyer or broker. There are many variations on the theme. Virtually all of them violate sections of the Taft Hartley or the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act.

The news on this front will break shortly enough--as it will across the Hudson River in Northern New Jersey. There the Justice Dept.'s Organized Crime section now headed by a professional law enforcement career man, Henry "Pete" Peterson, has concentrated an imposing force of diverse agents from several departments -- Labor, Justice, Treasury (Internal Revenue Service) --and, of course, the FBI.

In addition to Mr. Satz, there are three attorneys from the Organized Crime section. Their probe is the "hottest" thing in the investigation arena today. It goes right into the construction field.

There have been shakedowns reminiscent of earlier days when millions of dollars in small bills, old and well-worn, changed hands. Some business agents have been clipping as much as $60,000 to $70,000 a year.

What has appalled the probers is the ensuing cost to the consumer as a result of the skyrocketing expense of constructing the installations involved.

In the course of the investigation the federal authorities have come across old-fashioned terror which the public assumed went out with brass knucles and leadfilled baseball bats. Mind you, this did not spring from the underworld, but from a network of union officials who have consistently told the government to go to hell -- and who have refused to cooperate with the authorities on any important level.

Miss Sara Crumpecker Says Vows With George K. Ebel

MOREHOUSE--Miss Sara Ann Crumpecker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Crumpecker, exchanged wedding vows with George Kenneth Ebel of Memphis at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Rauch - Spence Methodist church.

Mrs. James Estep was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire styled floor-length gown of satin. The bodice was overlaid with lace and featured a scoop neckline and long lace sleeves. The lace train was trimmed in satin and was attached at the shoulders. Her headdress was a crown of lilies of the valley securing a veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mary Rowell was the bride's only attendant. She wore a pink crepe floor-length empire styled dress. The bodice featured elbow-length sleeves and a scooped neck. A garland of green velvet ivy encircled the waistline. She wore a veil headpiece and carried white spider mums.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white silk cloth. Bows of ribbon were at the corners. The three-tiered wedding cake centered the table. Punch and coffee were served from silver services. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Janey Kindle, Miss Ruth Ann Throgmorton of Memphis and Miss Sondra Jeffress of Poplar Bluff. Amiee H. Sailors was in charge of the guest book.

The bride's going away costume was a pink knit suit with matching accessories and a rose corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will live at Hernando, Miss.

Mizzou Tangles With Illinois, Tigers After Second Win

COLUMBIA, MO. -- Having kicked away its opening-season football jinx, Missouri trains its guns on Illinois at Champaign on Saturday afternoon as the Tigers attempt to add to their impressive second-game winning streak.

Mizzou blanked Minnesota 24-0 last week to post its first inaugural victory in the past four years. Despite the occasional opening-game stumbles, however, Dan Devine-coached teams have yet to taste defeat in a season's second-game during the successful mentor's eight-year stay here.

The near-perfect skein, including seven victories and a tie, will be given a strong test from the Illini, expected to bounce back from their surprising 26-7 loss to Southern Methodist last weekend. Coach Pete Elliot has 25 lettermen back from last year's team, which won five of its last six games.

The 1:30 p.m. (CDT) intersectional tussle -- Missouri's second straight against a Big Ten foe -- will be only the fourth between the two adjacent state schools. The Illini hold a 2-1 lead in the series with 10-0 and 24-7 victories in 1896 and 1913 respectively. Mizzou's lone win was a 27-20 decision in 1949.

The series between the two long-time recruiting rivals will continue with a 1968 date in Champaign and a neutral field battle a year later in St. Louis.

The Tigers received favorable responses to several early-season question marks in their opener. Highly creditable was the performance of untried quarterback Gary Kombrink, who completed all eight of his passes and ran for 63 yards. Mizzou also was able to boost its final victory margin late in the game on sophomore linebacker John Douglas's pass interception touchdown.

Illinois, however, which lost backfield standouts Jim Grabowski, Fred Custardo and Sam Price via graduation, faltered at the quarterback spot, where Sophomore Bob Naponic never was able to get his feet on the ground. SMU, with visions of last year's 42-0 rout at the hands of the Illini, also pushed over a last-minute six points to increase its winning edge.

Elliot has named Dean Volkman, 181-pound junior letterman, to direct his sophomore and junior-dominated squad. Volkman was inserted in the lineup during the second half when the Illini drove for their lone touchdown, narrowing SMU's lead to 13-7. Illinois then tried an onsides kick in order to retain the ball, but the Mustangs ran back the boot 32 yards to set up their game-clinching score.

Other Illinois personnel being given a wary eye by Devine and his Missouri assistants include end and flanker John Wright, a pre-season All-American pick and last year's Big Ten leading pass receiver, and halfback Cyril Pinder who holds the Illini record in the 60-yard dash.

The Tigers' punting team, which earned Devine's plaudits after holding Minnesota to only 15 yeard in five returns last weekend, will attempt to cover Pinder and another Illini back sprinter, fullback Doug Harford. Bill Bates, whose booming 42-yard field goal put Mizzou on the scoreboard in its opener, has a 40.9 punting average after eight kicks.

Several former teammates on the Illini and the Mizzou traveling squad, who attended Illinois high schools, will have reunions in Saturday's game at Champaign. Kombrink will meet another Belleville product, linebacker Herschel Johnson, and rival offensive ends, Missouri's Marty Berg and Illinois's Craig Timko, both played for Riverside-Brookfield high.

Former Collinsville teammates, Mizzou linebacker Bob Powell and Illini offensive guard Mike Waitukaitis, are expected to be in the game at the same times. Tiger starting tackle Lee Mungai and Illinois linebacker Bill Janecek both played for Berwyn high.

AP Sportswriter Picks Browns

NEW YORK (AP)—Something has to give Sunday when the Green Bay Packers and Los Angeles Rams, only unbeaten teams in the Western Conference, meet at Green Bay.

The Rams, fresh from an upset over the Chicago Bears in a grudge game, think they may be able to go all the way. The Packers, having disposed of Baltimore and Cleveland in replays of last year's big games, head into a normal schedule.

If the Rams had a little more punch, it would be tempting to pick them to upend the Packers, but that solid Green Bay defense should be able to handle the Roman Gabriel-Tommy McDonald aerials.

The old Hand picker hit a 9-2 pace last week for a season total of 19-4-2 (AFL 10-1, NFL 9-3-2), but this could be a rough one. It is possible to see an upset behind every tree.

Let's take another shot with all games scheduled for Sunday.

NFL

Green Bay 13, Los Angeles 10-Packers will have to go over or around that big front four of the Rams and Bart Starr's swing passes to Paul Hornung and Jim Taylor may do the job. George Allen has Rams sky high but they can't afford to fumble against those Packer ballhawks.

Cleveland 27, St. Louis 24-They split last year, Cards winning big 49-13 with Charley Johnson healthy in early season. Cards usually give Browns fits and may do it again but you can't give Frank Ryan too much time or he'll kill you with Paul Warfield and Gary Collins.

Dallas, 28, Minnesota 24—Cowboys just did edge Vikings 28-24 in Sept. 2 exhibition game despite big night by Bill Brown. Minnesota pass defense leaks and Don Meredith knows it.

Pittsburgh 24, Washington 21—And who would want to wager an old shoe on that one? Steelers must go with Ron Smith, who has only one pro game under his belt, and staggering Redskins keep giving away points faster than Sonny Jurgensen can get them. Redskins won both games easily last year.

Baltimore 31, San Francisco 24—Home opener for the Colts with Johnny Unitas ready to make Raymond Berry a record holder. Raymond needs only 58 yards to take all-time receiving title. After two weeks to think about the 20-20 tie with Vikings, 49ers should be hungry for action.

Philadelphia 28, New York 17--Giants looked like disorganized club in Dallas. Eagles about due to explode against somebody, especially if weak pass rush gives Norm Snead time to find his targets.

Detroit 10, Atlanta 0—The Randy Johnson-Alex Hawkins combo is Falcons' main threat but that Lion defense is tough.

Chicago has a bye.

AFL

San Diego 28, Oakland 21—Raiders must be desperate for a win after losing two straight following opener in Miami. Chargers had one week off and are aching to get even for 14-7 exhibition defeat by Oakland.

New York 35, Denver 7—Joe Namath can call the score in this one. Broncs making first start for new coach with Ray Malavasi replacing Mac Speedie after two defeats. Until Cookie comes home, Broncs in deep trouble.

Buffalo 21, Houston 20—Bills seem to have shaken off problems in romp over Miami.

Kansas City 31, Boston 14—Chiefs haven't scored less than 31 points this year, including exhibitions, so why not again.

Dogs Seek Revenge From 6-0 Victory By Charleston

The question is can the Charleston BlueJays turn the tide again?

The game will be at 7:30 p.m. CST. It had been printed on schedules as 7:30 p.m. DST.

Last year the unheralded at the start of the season BlueJays scored a 6-0 triumph over the highly rated Dogs, who are on the top of the area picks this week to revenge their first loss to Charleston in 17 years.

Charleston tied Poplar Bluff and Cape Central for top honors in the conference last season after pushing the Dogs aside.

The overall record for the teams is in the Bulldogs favor as they have a 54-23 record against the Jays and have tied twice.

Although the Bulldogs are favored by two touchdowns look for a real close game with the team with the most spirit, drive and hustle leaving the public school stadium with a victory.

There is no shortage of talent with either squad as Sikeston has a fine backfield in Lopp, Scudder and Limbaugh along with Mike Garner while the Jays have such players as Charles Babb at quarterback, Pod Ashley at guard, Dave Williams at halfback and Gary Williams at halfback and Gary Betts and Bruce Defield at ends.

Poplar Bluff is at home, playing the rough and ready upset minded Perryville Pirates. The Pirates have split in two games and have a light team. Bluff will feature the districts leading scorer in Jonn Brown.

The Pirates have a habit of coming up for the big games and this is a big one. The Mules sport one of the backfield combinations in the conference. Jonn Brown, a hard-running junior, has taken up where he left off last season.

The line has started to jell. This was the big question for Coach Jim Lohr as the season started and the Mules allowed only one touchdown to a high scoring Kennett group last week in the conference opener. Bluff has scored 58 points in two games. Perryville stopped Potosi before falling to Sikeston and has notched a total of 45 points and given up 20.

Other area action will find Kennett at Jackson, Chaffee at Portageville, East Prairie at Hayti, Malden at Gideon and Dexter will be at Caruthersville.

Cape State Takes On Evansville In Home Opener

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- Southeast Missouri State, hoping to rebound after an opening loss last week at Northeast Louisiana State, hosts Evansville College here Saturday night at 8 p.m. on Houck Field.

The Purple Aces of Evansville, who defeated Southeast Missouri last year 23-6, opened their season successfully last week with a 7-6 win over Bradley University.

The Indians prepared this week for a strong running Evansville team, sparked by the roll-out running of quarterback Joe Loge and the straight-up power of 215-pound Ken Mills. 5-4 finisher last year, the Aces are rated as "improved" by Jim Byers, in his first year as head coach.

The game is the first at home for the Indians, who will be playing in completely redesigned uniforms this year.

The Indians of coach Kenny Knox got off to a good start in last week's game, and held a 9-6 half-time lead, largely on the strength of a 68-yard pass from quarterback Greg Brune to split end Chuck Koerner. The Louisianans wore the Indians down, however, during the second half, and scored two touchdowns in the final period to ice the game.

Knox said that he was concerned about the large number of first-game mistakes, particularly on defense, where missed assignments led to frequent gains by Northeast Louisiana.

A bright spot, however, was a stout goal-line defense mustered by the Indians, which stopped one drive on the 1-yard line, and which had two near-misses on two Northeast Louisiana drives.

The Indians seemed to miss defensive tackle Van Hitt, a 235-pound sophomore from Jackson, who was suffering from a severe spider bite, and did not suit up for the game. His condition, Knox said, is improving, and it is hoped he will be ready for Evansville.

On the offense, the Southeast Missouri team showed occasional flashes of brilliance against a tough defense. Quarterback Brune hit on only 4 of 12 passes, but averaged more than 28 yards per pass. Halfbacks Walt Smallwood of Webster Groves, Mike Smith of E. St. Louis, and John Diepenbrock of St. Louis (Roosevelt), along with fullback Jim Farrell of St. Louis (Mercy), all averaged around 4 yeard per carry.

Eight Ball

We're going down to the 5 and 10 store, or somewhere, this week, and get a new eight ball. . . Where do you pick up an eight ball?

Well. . . We need a different one anyways. . . after suffering through the first two weeks of high school football in Southeast Missouri, where teams don't go by predictions, atleast not by the eight ball that picks the winners now. . . .

Everyone, including us, had Carbondale, Ill. picked over Cape Central. Those Tigers hung in their tough, however, and look what happened. . . a 14-11 upset. Central picked up scores in the first and second frame and pushed across from home in the fourth for the victory.

The old devil. . . in the eight ball, down after his first two weeks of failure, gazes again and we relate what he sees. . .

CHARLESTON AT SIKESTON -- The game of the week, and perhaps of the year. . . . Charleston swept past the Dogs last season 6-0 and the game this year might be a repeat of last seasons game. . . but it is very unlikely. The winner will be the team with the most incentive. .. and guts.

Charleston has been up and down in their first two contests and hope to be up for this big one. . . .

The Dogs line is big and quick. . . and rates among the top in the conference.

Sikeston is a big 10-point favorite in this game, but we know Charleston can win. If the Bluejays defense can contain Lopp, Scudder, Garner and Limbaugh, look for the Jays to pull a major upset.

Sikeston 21, Charleston 7.

KENNETT AT JACKSON -- Kennett is mad after last week's loss to Poplar Bluff. It will be a rough night for the Jackson Redmen . . . . Kennett 32, Jackson 13.

PERRYVILLE AT POPLAR BLUFF -- Another important North Division contest. Bluff beat Kennett last week, while Perryville was nipped by Sikeston. The Pirates will face too much beef. . . .

Bluff 28, Perryville 12

DEXTER AT CARUTHERSVILLE -- The Tigers will be on the recoil from last weeks rousing win over Hayti, but they're playing the wrong team. . . Dexter will give the Tigers all they want. . . pointwise that is. . . .

Caruthersville 20, Dexter 6.

CHAFFEE AT PORTAGEVILLE -- The Bulldogs have completely recovered from their 0-0 deadlock with Dexter last week and should make a good Red Devil sandwich out of the host!!!

Portageville 32, Chaffee 6.

EAST PRAIRIE AT HAYTI-- There should be a lot of scoring in this contest, with East Prairie perhaps a little more keyed up than the Indians . . . The Indians will fight close. . . Mixed Up. . . Ya.

Hayti 26, East Prairie 19.

GIDEON AT MALDEN -- Malden will win their first game of the season. The Dogs got their's last week. . . .

Malden 13, Gideon 7.

John Brown Leads SEMO Scoring

Brown, who scored two touchdowns at Kennett last Friday night, is leading the district in the Northern division with 10 points, one point ahead of Sikeston's Wayne Limbaugh, Roger Oster and Gerald Guemmer of Perryville, and Larry Freeland of the Southern conference Portageville team.

MSHSSA BOARD OF CONTROL TO STUDY FOOTBALL PLAY-OFF

The Board of Control at its September 16, 1966, meeting considered the suggestion made at its coaching school conducted last August that the Board of Control make a study to determine whether the schools playing interscholastic football desire to have the MSHSSA administer a series of football playoffs. Members of the Board acknowledged that similar suggestions had been made in the past.

It is the opinion of the Board that the interest expressed extends from:

1. The fact that the MSHSAA sponsors district and state tournaments in other high school sports.

2. That there is increased public interest in providing athletic activities for youth as evidenced by additions to high school programs and the number of events sponsored by non-school organizations during the summer months.

3. That playoffs would provide a stimulant to football.

4. That the same value could be received in football playoffs as are now received from other MSHSAA district and state events. It would provide the schools with an opportunity to demonstrate and to evaluate football over the state. (Members of the Board also expressed the opinion that any football playoffs should include an evaluation of sportsmanship as is now done in the basketball tournament program.)

5. Twenty-one states now have football playoffs and some others are giving study to them.

6. Providing a program with educational values that is officially an integral part of the interscholastic program of member schools can enhance the interest of the schools.

The Board instructed the Executive Secretary to make a study and outline the steps to be followed that include:

1. The schools playing interscholastic football shall be polled to determine whether there is any general desire for the MSHSAA to sponsor a series of football playoffs.

2. That if there is a desire, a committee shall be appointed to formulate a plan to present to the Board of Control.

3. After any consideration of he Board to such a play, it would be submitted to the schools for their evaluation.

4. That the Board of Control shall be guided by the expressed desires of the schools as will be revealed by the study.

It is expected that the study will be completed in about six to eight weeks.

Swing Along With Ted

by Jed Williams

POW! WHAM! KERPLUNK! Well, the mighty mamoths of professional football have exploded on our television screens. The football season is just getting under way and already there are grunts, groans and oofs from the fans. The New York Jets are burying the Giants the way the Mets buried the Yanks.

That old joke about Washington, D.C. being first in war, first in peace and last in the American League is changing. New York City is beginning to become the dust bin for sports teams. Outside of the Jets, the once mighty Yankees, the Rangers and the Knickerbockers have all been given brooms to clean out the cellar.

Actually, the biggest rivalry going on is between the New York Giants and the Jets. The Jets never looked better when they clobbered Houston, 52-13, and the Giants never looked worse when Dallas whomped them, 52-7. Nevertheless, as attractive as football is, everyone is gearing themselves now for baseball's World Series. This is the big one. This is still the sports attraction of our time. Many people today look upon pro football as a stronger gate attraction than baseball but this isn't so. You can't compare a once-a-week crowd for 14 games against baseball's 162 games. Though I do wish the schedule was still back to 154 games, it isn't fair to either sport to compare them in any way. It's like comparing Frank Sinatra to the Beatles. There's no comparison nor should there be, since each is a giant in his own way.

The only comparisons that should be made have to be within the context of the sport itself; the Orioles vs the Dodgers or Pirates, the Green Bay Packers against the Jets, the Boston Celtics against the Lakers, etc.

But no matter what the comparisons the World Series in baseball stands alone on top of the mountain no matter who else tries to stake out a flag. And this year is no exception. Though the American League race as usual was not up to par with the National League, it's still a new face once again with the Orioles on top. The little Birds from Baltimore along with the football Colts have made Baltimore one of our top sports cities. Baltimore doesn't have to take back seat to anybody.

It's also good to know that while the series is on, for a few hours each day we can put aside all of our problems. And why not? This is the way it should be. We all need a breather every once in a while. Perhaps the rest and relaxation of watching the baseball pros in action will give us a chance to take a deep breath and start attacking our own problems with more vigor. Who's going to win? Well, it better be the Orioles. With players like Frank Robinson, Boog Powell, Brooks Robinson in the line-up there should be a lot of 'Pows! Whams! and Kerplunks! rattling off their bats.

Of course, that's what a lot of us said about the Twins last year, didn't we?

Carol's Teen Party Leads To A Lucky Stage Break

Funny, how one party a girl gives can change the course of her life. Take Carol Brewster, for example, in the new story starting Monday in Mary Worth on the comics page.

TROY MEDINA

She knows the senior boys are going to find them and try to shake them up. What she doesn't know is that handsome young producer Troy Medina will also make the scene, under very unusual circumstances.

Cape State Takes On Evansville In Home Opener

CAPE GIRARDEAU-- Southeast Missouri State, hoping to rebound after an opening loss last week at Northeast Louisiana State, hosts Evansville College here Saturday night at 8 p.m. on Houck Field.

The Purple Aces of Evansville, who defeated Southeast Missouri last year 23-6, opened their season successfully last week with a 7-6 win over Bradley University.

The Indians prepared this week for a strong running Evansville team, sparked by the roll-out running of quarterback Joe Loge and the straight-up power of 215-pound Ken Mills. 5-4 finisher last year, the Aces are rated as "improved" by Jim Byers, in his first year as head coach.

MSHSSA BOARD OF CONTROL TO STUDY FOOTBALL PLAY-OFF

The Board of Control at its September 16, 1966, meeting considered the suggestion made at its coaching school conducted last August that the Board of Control make a study to determine whether the schools playing interscholastic football desire to have the MSHSSA administer a series of football playoffs. Members of the Board acknowledged that similar suggestions had been made in the past.

It is the opinion of the Board that the interest expressed extends from:

1. The fact that the MSHSAA sponsors district and state tournaments in other high school sports.

2. That there is increased public interest in providing athletic activities for youth as evidenced by additions to high school programs and the number of events sponsored by non-school organizations during the summer months.

3. That playoffs would provide a stimulant to football.

4. That the same value could be received in football playoffs as are now received from other MSHSAA district and state events. It would provide the schools with an opportunity to demonstrate and to evaluate football over the state. (Members of the Board also expressed the opinion that any football playoffs should include an evaluation of sportsmanship as is now done in the basketball tournament program.)

5. Twenty-one states now have football playoffs and some others are giving study to them.

6. Providing a program with educational values that is officially an integral part of the interscholastic program of member schools can enhance the interest of the schools.

The Board instructed the Executive Secretary to make a study and outline the steps to be followed that include:

1. The schools playing interscholastic football shall be polled to determine whether there is any general desire for the MSHSAA to sponsor a series of football playoffs.

2. That if there is a desire, a committee shall be appointed to formulate a plan to present to the Board of Control.

3. After any consideration of the Board to such a play, it would be submitted to the schools for their evaluation.

4. That the Board of Control shall be guided by the expressed desires of the schools as will be revealed by the study.

It is expected that the study will be completed in about six to eight weeks.

Swing Along With Ted

by Ted Williams

POW! WHAM! KERPLUNK! Well, the mighty mamoths of professional football have exploded on our television screens. The football season is just getting under way and already there are grunts, groans and oofs from the fans. The New York Jets are burying the Giants the way the Mets buried the Yanks.

That old joke about Washington, D.C. being first in war, first in peace and last in the American League is changing. New York City is beginning to become the dust bin for sports teams. Outside of the Jets, the once mighty Yankees, the Rangers and the Knickerbockers have all been given brooms to clean out the cellar.

Actually, the biggest rivalry going on is between the New York Giants and the Jets. The Jets never looked better when they clobbered Houston, 52-13, and the Giants never looked worse when Dallas whomped them, 52-7. Nevertheless, as attractive as football is, everyone is gearing themselves now for baseball's World Series. This is the big one. This is still the sports attraction of our time. Many people today look upon pro football as a stronger gate attraction than baseball but this isn't so. You can't compare a once-a-week crowd for 14 games against baseball's 162 games. Though I do wish the schedule was still back to 154 games, it isn't fair to either sport to compare them in any way. It's like comparing Frank Sinatra to the Beatles. There's no comparison nor should there be, since each is a giant in his own way.

The only comparisons that should be made have to be within the context of the sport itself; the Orioles vs the Dodgers or Pirates, the Green Bay Packers against the Jets, the Boston Celtics against the Lakers, etc.

But no matter what the comparisons the World Series in baseball stands alone on top of the mountain no matter who else tries to stake out a flag. And this year is no exception. Though the American League race as usual was not up to par with the National League, it's still a new face once again with the Orioles on top. The little Birds from Baltimore along with the football Colts have made Baltimore one of our top sports cities. Baltimore doesn't have to take back seat to anybody.

It's also good to know that while the series is on, for a few hours each day we can put aside all of our problems. And why not? This is the way it should be. We all need a breather every once in a while. Perhaps the rest and relaxation of watching the baseball pros in action will give us a chance to take a deep breath and start attacking our own problems with more vigor. Who's going to win? Well, it better be the Orioles. With players like Frank Robinson, Boog Powell, Brooks Robinson in the line-up there should be a lot of 'Pows! Whams! and Kerplunks! rattling off their bats.

Of course, that's what a lot of us said about the Twins last year, didn't we?

Carol's Teen Party Leads To A Lucky Stage Break

Funny, how one party a girl gives can change the course of her life. Take Carol Brewster, for example, in the new story starting Monday in Mary Worth on the comics page.

TROY MEDINA

She knows the senior boys are going to find them and try to shake them up. What she doesn't know is that handsome young producer Troy Medina will also make the scene, under very unusual circumstances.

Miss Sikeston Candidates Anxiously Await Contest

22 Sikeston Seniors To Represent Community In Annual Beauty Contest

Crowning of the Miss Sikeston will take place approximately at 11:30 after the judges reach a decision.

After the Charleston-Sikeston football game, the girls will assemble at the Dunn Hotel and go immediately to the stage on the midway.

Contestants must walk the length of the stage for the judges and audience to view. They will be selected on beauty, charm, grace, and appearance in formal dress.

Hunter Phillips, chairman of the state tax commission from Jefferson City, will be here to place the crown on the lucky girl.

Barbara was crowned by R.J. King, St. Louis County Representative, last year.

Two alternates will be named and immediately after, the winner will be announced. A bouquet of flowers will be presented her and she will reign supreme as queen of the city for the coming year.

The new Miss Sikeston will not only have honor to her credit, but she will also be the lucky recipient of many gifts bestowed upon her by city businessmen.

She will have the responsibility of representing not only her city but also Sikeston high school throughout the coming year during her reign.

Next year at this time she will return to the contest and make her final appearance and express appreciation and thanks for her noteworthy office.

Tomorrow evening she will attend the Queen's ball at the American Legion Hall in Sikeston, completing her exciting week end.

Miss Judy Burge Is SHS Student Teacher

Miss Judy Burge is a senior at Southeast Missouri State College where she is majoring in social studies, and her minor is English. Miss Burge is doing her student teaching in the history department, directed by Mrs. Catherine Matthews.

She commutes from Cape Girardeau each day.

It means nothing to be young without beauty, or beautiful without youth.

Twins Different; Double Identity Only Skin Deep

The girls moved to Sikeston in 1961 from Charleston and presently reside at 845 Agnes Street with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Morrison, and one sister, Melinda, who is a senior.

Unlike most cases of twins, it is not difficult to distinguish Margaret from Marsha (if one can simultaneously remember that Margaret has the darker hair and Marsha is the taller of the two).

Friends of the two state that Margaret and Marsha are distinctively different, in spite of strong physical resemblence. Their personalties reveal individual interests and tastes, but they sometimes like to dress alike.

Both girls play the flute in the 7:30 marching band and have three of their seven classes together. This situation occasionally confuses many people -- especially the teachers who are involved.

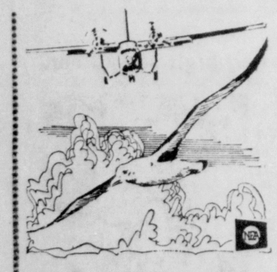
The girls' aunt, the former Carol Keller, who presently lives in Dallas, Texas, was the editor of the Barker in 1959.

APPRECIATION

The Red Peppers and cheerleaders wish to extend their appreciation to Sharon Kirby for taking the time and effort to bring her drum to the out-of-town games.

Appreciation is also extended to the decoration committees for the Chaffee and Perryville games. "The decorations boosted the school spirit for both games," said Mary Reid, vice-cayenne.

matter of fact



The albatross is one of the most powerful flying sea birds in the world. There is evidence that the phenomenal homing instinct of these birds has enabled them to circumnavigate the southern hemisphere one or more times between breeding seasons. One albatross, taken from its nesting place on Midway Island to the North Pacific, made the return trip of 3,200 miles in just over 10 days, at an average speed of 317 miles per day.

SHS Band To Perform In Parade

Sikeston's "marching Bulldogs," directed by Keith Collins, will be the largest of 20 bands from Southeast Missouri schools to march in the annual cotton carnival parade in downtown Sikeston tomorrow morning.

Drum majors Elizabeth Martin and Susan Jobe will lead the 175-piece high school band.

"Semper Fidelis" and Thunderer" march along with the traditional "Sounding Brass" theme song will be played as the musicians complete the parade that highlights the cotton carnival in Sikeston.

Band will present its first half-time routine of the football season when the Bulldogs meet the Charleston Blue Jays tonight at the public school stadium.

"Spotlight on the Brass" fanfare will be played and foliowed by a precision drill to the music of the "Band Played On."

Standing in the concert formation of SHS, the players will present "No Matter What Shape" and "Melody by Rachmaninoff." Another two-step drill to "Sounding Brass" will follow.

Completing the show, the band will march off the football field while playing "The Red and the Black."

Growler Sales For '67 Start Monday Morning

Yearbooks for '67 go on sale Monday morning. The cost this year is $5 and each student will vote for the royalty candidates as he purchases a book.

Nominees for Growler king and queen will be elected Tuesday morning. One boy and one girl will be elected from each senior homeroom.

The price of the yearbook will be reduced to $4.50 for the first person to make a purchase.

The staff began work on the Growler at the beginning of school and photographs are being snapped of the school events.

In approximately six weeks, the Growler king and queen will be crowned.

Student Council Inducts New Representatives

Charles Matthews, IV, secretary of the Sikeston Board of Education and prominent lawyer in the city, was the guest speaker for the induction of the newly-elected student council members Tuesday morning.

He used as his subject "New Morality," and he gave a review of its relationship to high school students, pointing out especially those students who were members of the student council.

After the conclusion of Mr. Matthews' remarks to the student body, president Brian Underwood introduced the officers of the student council and presented each with a pin, the official emblem of the organization.

Officers of the organization are Brian Underwood, president; Fred Matthews, vice-president; Judy Murchison, secretary; Sally Faulkner, corresponding secretary; and Danny Lopp, treasurer.

Student council representatives were elected at the beginning of the year, in the second homeroom meeting, and the officers of the organization were elected at the conclusion of last year.

The election was held at the climax of an intensive campaign given by the nominees for office. Elections were by secret ballot.

FHA Announces Jean Shankle As President

Assisting her will be Janet Reeves, vice-president; Rita Douglas, secretary-treasurer; and Connie Wagley, reporter-program chairman.

Installation ceremony will be held in the near future for the officers.

Regular meetings of the club will be Monday afternoons.

An award is given at the annual honor assembly in the spring to the most active person in the organization.

Any girl interested in joining the club should contact Mrs. Wilma April, sponsor. or one of the officers.

Bulldog Barker Is Result Of Long, Active Hours

"PASS ME THE SCISSORS."

The paper itself is put together in five distinct steps-- assigning articles to reporters, writing the articles, copyreading, proofreading them, and laying out the copy.

The first step of the first step is discussing what is newsworthy among the various areas of the school. A partial list of these areas include faculty, sports, guidance, art, music, all clubs and organizations, academic curriculum, and the student body.

Writing the articles is undoubtedly the most difficult step. Appointments, sometimes inconvenient, must be made for all interviews and most of the photography. All articles must be written four days after they have been assigned in order to meet the deadline -- two days before the paper is issued. All articles then enter step "three" of the operation.

In copyreading, the various editors look primarily for mistakes in grammar and spelling, and delete any "cutty" remarks.

The final copies of the articles are sent to the printer where they are printed into columns as wide as those on a Barker page. This "proof" is then sent back to the school. Corrections are made by proofreading each article. The "proof" is then sent back to the printer.

Arranging the news copy on dummy sheets deserves to be the last step. Since the invention of the Gutenburg press, journalists have failed to come up with a better way of making the articles "fit" onto the paper than trial and error. Each page must be balanced according to the boldness of headlines and arrangement of photographs in order to make the page more attractive to a reader.

The copy is taped to the dummy sheets, torn up, cut up, and taped again until it finally finds a satisfactory resting place.

All four pages of material are then taken to the printer, where they are processed. The result? You're looking at it! --Connie Nowell.

High School DE Students Begin Work

Distributive education, directed by Norman Woods, is designed to give job experience and training in the particular fields which students show an interest.

Besides on-the-job training, the 21 students enrolled in this program in Sikeston high school receive classroom training each morning at 7:30.

Students participate in the distributive education program attend classes one-half day and work on the job the other half day. Most of these leave school at 1:20 each day.

Jobs are found for the students by the instructor. A student may have a job before he enters this program, but it must be authorized by the coordinator before he is permitted to continue working at this particular place of business on school time.

Sikeston's distributive education organization is affiliated with the state group, called DECA.

Outstanding Red Peppers

Karen Baugus

Sally Faulkner

Senior Sally Faulkner and junior Karen Baugus were named outstanding Red Peppers at the Perryville game Friday night.

The stands were crowded with excited Red Peppers while the cheerleaders led the crowd as it cheered the Bulldogs on to victory.

Most young people fancy they are being natural when they are only being lowbred and rude.

Miss Sikeston Candidates Anxiously Await Contest

22 Sikeston Seniors To Represent Community In Annual Beauty Contest

Teresa Hamelmann, Betty Hartlein, Cheryl Hurley, Carlotte Jones, Beth Marshall, Elizabeth Martin, Melinda Morrison.

Crowning of the Miss Sikeston will take place approximately at 11:30 after the judges reach a decision.

After the Charleston-Sikeston football game, the girls will assemble at the Dunn Hotel and go immediately to the stage on the midway.

Contestants must walk the length of the stage for the judges and audience to view. They will be selected on beauty, charm, grace, and appearance in formal dress.

Hunter Phillips, chairman of the state tax commission from Jefferson City, will be here to place the crown on the lucky girl.

Barbara was crowned by R.J. King, St. Louis County Representative, last year.

Two alternates will be named and immediately after, the winner will be announced. A bouquet of flowers will be presented her and she will reign supreme as queen of the city for the coming year.

The new Miss Sikeston will not only have honor to her credit, but she will also be the lucky recipient of many gifts bestowed upon her by city businessmen.

She will have the responsibility of representing not only her city but also Sikeston high school throughout the coming year during her reign.

Next year at this time she will return to the contest and make her final appearance and express appreciation and thanks for her noteworthy office.

Tomorrow evening she will attend the Queen's ball at the American Legion Hall in Sikeston, completing her exciting week end.

Miss Judy Burge Is SHS Student Teacher

Miss Judy Burge is a senior at Southeast Missouri State College where she is majoring in social studies, and her minor is English. Miss Burge is doing her student teaching in the history department, directed by Mrs. Catherine Matthews.

She commutes from Cape Girardeau each day.

It means nothing to be young without beauty, or beautiful without youth.

DRUM MAJOR Elizabeth Martin will lead the "marching Bulldogs" in the coming season.

Twins Different; Double Identity Only Skin Deep

The girls moved to Sikeston in 1961 from Charleston and presently reside at 845 Agnes Street with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Morrison, and one sister, Melinda, who is a senior.

Unlike most cases of twins, it is not difficult to distinguish Margaret from Marsha (if one can simultaneously remember that Margaret has the darker hair and Marsha is the taller of the two).

Friends of the two state that Margaret and Marsha are distinctively different, in spite of strong physical resemblence. Their personalties reveal individual interests and tastes, but they sometimes like to dress alike.

Both girls play the flute in the 7:30 marching band and have three of their seven classes together. This situation occasionally confuses many people -- especially the teachers who are involved.

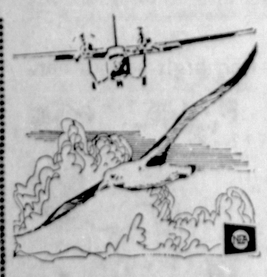
The girls' aunt, the former Carol Keller, who presently lives in Dallas, Texas, was the editor of the Barker in 1959.

APPRECIATION

The Red Peppers and cheerleaders wish to extend their appreciation to Sharon Kirby for taking the time and effort to bring her drum to the out-of-town games.

Appreciation is also extended to the decoration committees for the Chaffee and Perryville games. "The decorations boosted the school spirit for both games," said Mary Reid, vice-cayenne.

matter of fact



The albatross is one of the most powerful flying sea birds in the world. There is evidence that the phenomenal homing instinct of these birds has enabled them to circumnavigate the southern hemisphere one or more times between breeding seasons. One albatross, taken from its nesting place on Midway Island to the North Pacific, made the return trip of 3,200 miles in just over 10 days, at an average speed of 317 miles per day.

SHS Band To Perform In Parade

Sikeston's "marching Bulldogs," directed by Keith Collins, will be the largest of 20 bands from Southeast Missouri schools to march in the annual cotton carnival parade in downtown Sikeston tomorrow morning.

Drum majors Elizabeth Martin and Susan Jobe will lead the 175-piece high school band.

"Semper Fidelis" and Thunderer" march along with the traditional "Sounding Brass" theme song will be played as the musicians complete the parade that highlights the cotton carnival in Sikeston.

Band will present its first half-time routine of the football season when the Bulldogs meet the Charleston Blue Jays tonight at the public school stadium.

"Spotlight on the Brass" fanfare will be played and followed by a precision drill to the music of the "Band Played On."

Standing in the concert formation of SHS, the players will present "No Matter What Shape" and "Melody by Rachmaninoff." Another two-step drill to "Sounding Brass" will follow.

Completing the show, the band will march off the football field while playing "The Red and the Black."

Growler Sales For '67 Start Monday Morning

Yearbooks for '67 go on sale Monday morning. The cost this year is $5 and each student will vote for the royalty candidates as he purchases a book.

Nominees for Growler king and queen will be elected Tuesday morning. One boy and one girl will be elected from each senior homeroom.

The price of the yearbook will be reduced to $4.50 for the first person to make a purchase.

The staff began work on the Growler at the beginning of school and photographs are being snapped of the school events.

In approximately six weeks, the Growler king and queen will be crowned.

Student Council Inducts New Representatives

Charles Matthews, IV, secretary of the Sikeston Board of Education and prominent lawyer in the city, was the guest speaker for the induction of the newly-elected student council members Tuesday morning.

He used as his subject "New Morality," and he gave a review of its relationship to high school students, pointing out especially those students who were members of the student council.

After the conclusion of Mr. Matthews' remarks to the student body, president Brian Underwood introduced the officers of the student council and presented each with a pin, the official emblem of the organization.

Officers of the organization are Brian Underwood, president; Fred Matthews, vice-president; Judy Murchison, secretary; Sally Faulkner, corresponding secretary; and Danny Lopp, treasurer.

Student council representatives were elected at the beginning of the year, in the second homeroom meeting, and the officers of the organization were elected at the conclusion of last year.

The election was held at the climax of an intensive campaign given by the nominees for office. Elections were by secret ballot.

FHA Announces Jean Shankle As President

Assisting her will be Janet Reeves, vice-president; Rita Douglas, secretary-treasurer; and Connie Wagley, reporter-program chairman.

Installation ceremony will be held in the near future for the officers.

Regular meetings of the club will be Monday afternoons.

An award is given at the annual honor assembly in the spring to the most active person in the organization.

Any girl interested in joining the club should contact Mrs. Wilma April, sponsor. or one of the officers.

Bulldog Barker Is Result Of Long, Active Hours

"PASS ME THE SCISSORS."

The paper itself is put together in five distinct steps-- assigning articles to reporters, writing the articles, copyreading, proofreading them, and laying out the copy.

The first step of the first step is discussing what is newsworthy among the various areas of the school. A partial list of these areas include faculty, sports, guidance, art, music, all clubs and organizations, academic curriculum, and the student body.

Writing the articles is undoubtedly the most difficult step. Appointments, sometimes inconvenient, must be made for all interviews and most of the photography. All articles must be written four days after they have been assigned in order to meet the deadline -- two days before the paper is issued. All articles then enter step "three" of the operation.

In copyreading, the various editors look primarily for mistakes in grammar and spelling, and delete any "cutty" remarks.

The final copies of the articles are sent to the printer where they are printed into columns as wide as those on a Barker page. This "proof" is then sent back to the school. Corrections are made by proofreading each article. The "proof" is then sent back to the printer.

Arranging the news copy on dummy sheets deserves to be the last step. Since the invention of the Gutenburg press, journalists have failed to come up with a better way of making the articles "fit" onto the paper than trial and error. Each page must be balanced according to the boldness of headlines and arrangement of photographs in order to make the page more attractive to a reader.

The copy is taped to the dummy sheets, torn up, cut up, and taped again until it finally finds a satisfactory resting place.

All four pages of material are then taken to the printer, where they are processed. The result? You're looking at it! --Connie Nowell.

High School DE Students Begin Work

Distributive education, directed by Norman Woods, is designed to give job experience and training in the particular fields which students show an interest.

Besides on-the-job training, the 21 students enrolled in this program in Sikeston high school receive classroom training each morning at 7:30.

Students participate in the distributive education program attend classes one-half day and work on the job the other half day. Most of these leave school at 1:20 each day.

Jobs are found for the students by the instructor. A student may have a job before he enters this program, but it must be authorized by the coordinator before he is permitted to continue working at this particular place of business on school time.

Sikeston's distributive education organization is affiliated with the state group, called DECA.

Outstanding Red Peppers

Karen Baugus

Sally Faulkner

Senior Sally Faulkner and junior Karen Baugus were named outstanding Red Peppers at the Perryville game Friday night.

The stands were crowded with excited Red Peppers while the cheerleaders led the crowd as it cheered the Bulldogs on to victory.

Most young people fancy they are being natural when they are only being lowbred and rude.

Ann Landers
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I wrote to you two years ago about my husband who couldn't stay in one town long enough for me to enjoy the flowers I planted. You said it was a wife's job to "go where the grapes grow" --so off we went again -- our 11th move in 16 years.

Well, the grapes are sour again. New Mexico was too dry and Oregon was too wet. California had too many people and Montana didn't have ENOUGH people. Atlanta was no good because he couldn't understand what the natives were saying. Boston was no good because the natives couldn't understand what HE was saying.

Our children have adjusted to these moves beautifully so that is not the problem. It's just that I am sick of pulling up stakes every time my husband gets it into his head to move. Last night he started to cough and said, "I know I'd feel better in Phoenix."

He's a first class machinist and can make a good living wherever he goes. Is there any chance that I can get him to stay put this time? -- MRS. NOMAD

Dear Mrs.: Probably not. So be thankful the children haven't suffered from the repeated uprooting and go along with the loon. I don't believe in egging people on to fight battles they can't win.

Dear Ann Landers: Our oldest son is in his third year of college. My husband and I are having a serious disagreement over how much financial help we should give the boy.

Nick has always been a hard worker, a saver and very independent. He and his father do not get along well. The first two years my husband paid Nick's tuition and offered him a spending allownace which Nick refused.

This year Nick says he doesn't want any financial help at all. He insists on using the money he has saved from working. My husband says this is O.K. with him but it is NOT O.K. with me.

I feel parents are morally obligated to put their children through college if they possibly can. We are not millionaires but we can handle the boy's education with no strain. Please agree with me in print. I need your help. -- N.R.

Dear N.R.: Sorry, but you'll get no help from me on this one. Obviously Nick has opted to paddle his own canoe. His demonstration of independence and initiative should be applauded, not undermined. The more our kids do for themselves the better off they'll be. So for heaven's sake, mother, leave him alone. He sounds like a winner.

Dear Ann Landers: I sympathize with the woman who was terrified whenever she had to go to a funeral home and look at a dead person. I have the same horrible fear -- but I know what caused it.

When I was a child (40 years ago) I overheard some adults talking about a man who had been pronounced dead and taken to a funeral home. He was actually in a coma. When the mortician saw the "corpse" move, he almost had a heart attack. A physician was summoned at once. He rushed over and revived the "dead" man who lived five years after that.

A few years later my grandfather died. When I went to the wake I was petrified. I was sure grandpa would come alive at any moment. The thought of it made me physically ill. From that day to this I have asked my friends to excuse me from going to funerals and I tell them why. They all understand. -- COUNT ME OUT

Dear Count: If you haven't been able to overcome the fear after 40 years, you might as well stay home and spare yourself the agony.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry -- Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Looking Back Over The Years

Morehouse and Morley High Schools open their football season this Friday, when they meet on the Morehouse gridiron at 2:30.

We hear it rumored that one of our nearby cotton growers was planning to relieve the shortage of cotton pickers by importing a tribe of monkeys to do the picking. The only thing which kept him from it was the warning a neighbor gave him. "You bring those monkeys in here," he said, "and within six months the Republicans will have them voting." So the experiment was given up.

Miss Della Harper was crowned "Queen of the Southeast Missouri District Fair" Friday afternoon by Congressman Ralph E. Bailey.

Morehouse -- Miss Handa Saville, who is training for a nurse in the St. Louis City Hospital, is at home on a vacation. She says the gangsters in St. Louis make the best patients.

Construction projects totaling $18,000 will be started soon in Sikeston, it was learned through inspection of records in the office of City Clerk, A. C. Barrett.

Elmer Frederick Mangrum, 63 years old, died Wednesday afternoon at his home on Matthews.

David Rowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt H. Rowe, will leave September 23 for Fulton, Mo., where he will attend Westminster College.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beavers and family of 217 Trotter, are moving to a farm in Hardin, Ill., soon.

Willand Takes Episcopal Post

ST. LOUIS--Appointment of Rev. Pitt S. Willand as administrative director for program and operations of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri was announced today by Bishop George L. Cadigan.

To accept the diocesan post, the Rev. Mr. Willand resigned as rector of Emmanuel Church, Webster Groves, effective Oct. 31. Emmanuel parishioners were informed of the resignation yesterday in letters from Willand and Dr. Manning M. Pattillo, senior warden.

Selection of the program officer by Bishop Cadigan completed the staffing of five divisions called for in the reorganization of the diocese by action of two conventions last spring. In the new post, Willand will oversee the total diocesan program, working in cooperation with Rev. Anthony J. Morley, research and planning officer.

Ann Landers
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I wrote to you two years ago about my husband who couldn't stay in one town long enough for me to enjoy the flowers I planted. You said it was a wife's job to "go where the grapes grow" --so off we went again -- our 11th move in 16 years.

Well, the grapes are sour again. New Mexico was too dry and Oregon was too wet. California had too many people and Montana didn't have ENOUGH people. Atlanta was no good because he couldn't understand what the natives were saying. Boston was no good because the natives couldn't understand what HE was saying.

Our children have adjusted to these moves beautifully so that is not the problem. It's just that I am sick of pulling up stakes every time my husband gets it into his head to move. Last night he started to cough and said, "I know I'd feel better in Phoenix."

He's a first class machinist and can make a good living wherever he goes. Is there any chance that I can get him to stay put this time? -- MRS. NOMAD

Dear Mrs.: Probably not. So be thankful the children haven't suffered from the repeated uprooting and go along with the loon. I don't believe in egging people on to fight battles they can't win.

Dear Ann Landers: Our oldest son is in his third year of college. My husband and I are having a serious disagreement over how much financial help we should give the boy.

Nick has always been a hard worker, a saver and very independent. He and his father do not get along well. The first two years my husband paid Nick's tuition and offered him a spending allownace which Nick refused.

This year Nick says he doesn't want any financial help at all. He insists on using the money he has saved from working. My husband says this is O.K. with him but it is NOT O.K. with me.

I feel parents are morally obligated to put their children through college if they possibly can. We are not millionaires but we can handle the boy's education with no strain. Please agree with me in print. I need your help. -- N.R.

Dear N.R.: Sorry, but you'll get no help from me on this one. Obviously Nick has opted to paddle his own canoe. His demonstration of independence and initiative should be applauded, not undermined. The more our kids do for themselves the better off they'll be. So for heaven's sake, mother, leave him alone. He sounds like a winner.

Dear Ann Landers: I sympathize with the woman who was terrified whenever she had to go to a funeral home and look at a dead person. I have the same horrible fear -- but I know what caused it.

When I was a child (40 years ago) I overheard some adults talking about a man who had been pronounced dead and taken to a funeral home. He was actually in a coma. When the mortician saw the "corpse" move, he almost had a heart attack. A physician was summoned at once. He rushed over and revived the "dead" man who lived five years after that.

A few years later my grandfather died. When I went to the wake I was petrified. I was sure grandpa would come alive at any moment. The thought of it made me physically ill. From that day to this I have asked my friends to excuse me from going to funerals and I tell them why. They all understand. -- COUNT ME OUT

Dear Count: If you haven't been able to overcome the fear after 40 years, you might as well stay home and spare yourself the agony.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry -- Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Morehouse and Morley High Schools open their football season this Friday, when they meet on the Morehouse gridiron at 2:30.

We hear it rumored that one of our nearby cotton growers was planning to relieve the shortage of cotton pickers by importing a tribe of monkeys to do the picking. The only thing which kept him from it was the warning a neighbor gave him. "You bring those monkeys in here," he said, "and within six months the Republicans will have them voting." So the experiment was given up.

Willand Takes Episcopal Post

ST. LOUIS--Appointment of Rev. Pitt S. Willand as administrative director for program and operations of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri was announced today by Bishop George L. Cadigan.

To accept the diocesan post, the Rev. Mr. Willand resigned as rector of Emmanuel Church, Webster Groves, effective Oct. 31. Emmanuel parishioners were informed of the resignation yesterday in letters from Willand and Dr. Manning M. Pattillo, senior warden.

Selection of the program officer by Bishop Cadigan completed the staffing of five divisions called for in the reorganization of the diocese by action of two conventions last spring. In the new post, Willand will oversee the total diocesan program, working in cooperation with Rev. Anthony J. Morley, research and planning officer.

Today In U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1779, the first decisive naval battle waged by the United States was fought off the coast of England. American naval hero John Paul Jones defeated and captured the British ship "Serapis."

On this date:

In 1939, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini said Italy's position would be one of neutrality.

In 1943, the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China agreed on the creation of a United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman said he would shoulder full responsibility for future development of the atomic bomb and atomic energy.

Ten years ago — Britain and France asked the U.N. Security Council to consider the situation created by Egypt's unilateral action in bringing to an end the system of international operation of the Suez Canal.

Five years ago — It was reported in Washington that the frozen diplomatic climate surrounding the Berlin issue appeared to be thawing. The reports said both Moscow and Washington were starting to show their eagerness for negotiations over Berlin and Germany.

One year ago — U.S. chief delegate to the U.N., Arthur Goldberg, lashed out at Red China in his maiden speech to the U.N. General Assembly. He accused the Peking regime of striving to change world order by force and violence.

Freeze Ordered On Federal Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Acting on instructions from President Johnson, the Budget Bureau has ordered a freeze on adding new jobs to the federal payrolls through next June.

The Defense and Post Office departments, which employ more than 1.5 million civilians, and the Selective Service System were exempted from the economy move.

Officials said the Viet Nam war is responsible for exempting the Defense Department and Selective Service System, while the Post Office Department is not covered because of the increasingly large workload it carries.

Officials estimated the order would save about $250 million by not adding some 30,000 to 40,000 persons to federal payrolls. They said no one is expected to be fired because of the order.

Four Arrests

Two motorists were arrested Thursday night on driving charges.

Virgil Burks Jr., 326 Daniel, was stopped at Main and Malone and charged with careless and imprudent driving for allegedly taking off from a stop at a high rate of speed, police reported.

Ronnie D. Patterson of Essex, was charged with speeding on West Malone.

Caleb Oliver, 805 Delmar, and John K. Irwin, Dunn Hotel, were arrested Thursday night and charged with public intoxication.

Police also received one call Thursday night reporting a prowler in the 500 block of Matthews. No one was found in the area, police reported.

Police received a report from Mrs. W. Cecil Carter, 202 Petroleum, Thursday stating that her son's senior class ring was stolen at school Wednesday, police said.

Miss Gregory Dies Thursday

Miss Pearl Bessie Gregory, 76, of Morehouse, died at 10 a.m. Thursday in a Cape Girardeau hospital.

Born at Sikeston Sept. 29, 1889, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gregory.

Miss Gregory was a retired employe of the International Shoe Company.

Surviving are two brothers, Clyde Gregory, Morehouse, and Earl Gregory, Bloomfield; one sister, Mrs. Unice Sturgeon, Bloomfield.

Services will be in the Jackson Funeral Chapel Saturday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Jonn Cullins, officiating.

Burial will be in City cemetery.

duties, ya know. I haven't learned all my duties yet."

Although new in Sikeston, and new to the priesthood he was ordained in Rome March 5, 1966, Father Monaghan has assumed an active role as spiritual director of the Legion of Mary. The Legion of Mary is an organization of parish members who visit the ill and do other Christian work.

"People always ask me about the differences here," he said.

For one thing here, he continued, children mature sooner. They are more frank in asking questions and it makes for a good teacher - student relationship, he added.

Young people here marry earlier than in Ireland, he pointed out. The average age for a girl to be married there is about 21 and about 23 for a boy, he said.

"Another thing I noticed here are the funeral homes. There are no funeral homes in my country. There they have a wake. The dead person is laid out in his bed at home one day, and taken to the church the next day for services. Also, there is no embalming in Ireland," he stated.

Cars are much bigger here and gasoline is much cheaper. However, he added, the smaller European cars give about twice as much mileage.

Also in this country Father Monaghan commented: "I've found people don't want your money, they want your credit card."

The young priest completed four years of theology in Rome, and was there during the Ecumenical council sessions. He said it was quite a privilege to study there at the time and was happy with the results of the council.

It seemed to bring the church up to date, and has had good effects in breaking down old prejudices of Catholics and Protestants. It had a great unifying effect among representatives of all religions, he added.

Sikeston would probably seem a letdown to most readers after a person has spent six years in Rome.

Not so with the young priest. "I'm very happy to be here, rather than a larger city for my first assignment."

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is the predominant breed of beef cattle in the United States?

A—There are more Herefords, commercial and purebred, marketed every year than all other beef breeds combined.

Q—What is the rule regarding leap years?

A—Those years which are exactly divisible by four are leap years, except centesimal years. In such cases they are not leap years, unless they are exactly divisible by 400. Thus the year 1900 was not a leap year, but the year 2000 will be a leap year.

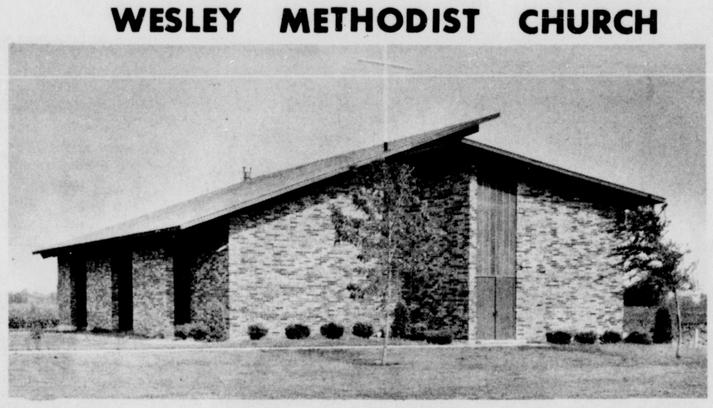
THIS WEEK SALUTING

WESLEY METHODIST CHURCH

J. HARMON HOLT
Pastor



Wesley Methodist Church, First Methodist Church, and Smith Chapel Methodist Churches are all members of the Missouri East Annual Conference and the Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District - with the same Bishop and District Superintendent.

The tenets of Methodism appeared in the paper only a few weeks ago by Reverend Joseph H. Wagner, pastor of the First Church. Each church is free to direct the program of the church with the support and leadership in the great Connectional System. They embrace the philosophy that the church as an institution of LOVE, and that each member is called upon to be an agent of peace and good will with a dedicated and devoted life to Christ, the church and community.

Wesley has a thriving Church School, Woman's Society of Christian Service, Methodist Youth Fellowship, and Methodist Men's Club. Along with these organizations within the church comes the Commissions - Education, Stewardship and Finance, Missions, Christian Social Concerns, and Membership and Evangelism - then there are the Committees - Worship, Music, Communion, Hospital and Homes, Pastoral Relations and etc. All the work of each individual church is channeled through the Official Board and these Commissions and Committees.

Each minister lifts Christ up before his people as the Saviour, Redeemer, and example of devotion and dedication to the cause for which He died, and that this Christ is the Saviour of all mankind, and that all the saved, regardless of denomination, creed, race, or cast are brethern in this Christ.

Wesley Methodist Church expresses thanks to Rev. Floyd Brower, District Superintendent of Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District for his leadership and devotion to Wesley Church and to Rev. Jos. Wagner and the First Methodist Church the many expressions of kindness, gifts, and assistance in leadership. Also the assistance in the new addition which will give floor space - 68 by 34 feet or 2,312 square feet. This addition, which is being built today, will be a great blessing in the promotion of educational, social and general expansion of the church.

Wesley Methodist Church is organized, supported and directed by a large number of young married people, a lovely group of elderly couples, and middle-age people, a host of fine children and a fine youth group. They are all a friendly people and a large welcome is extended to the public.

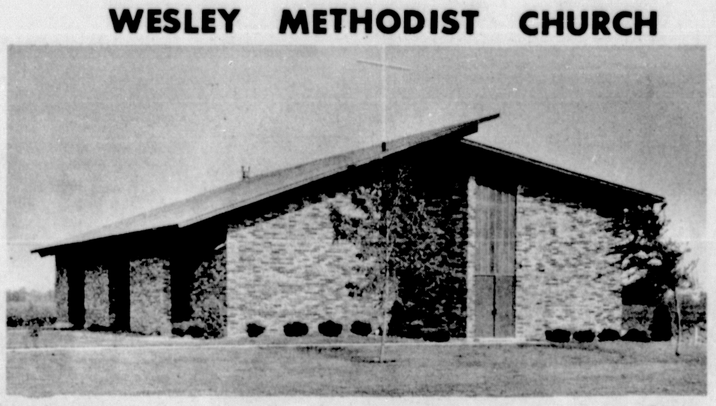
WESLEY METHODIST CHURCH

J. HARMON HOLT
Pastor



Wesley Methodist Church, First Methodist Church, and Smith Chapel Methodist Churches are all members of the Missouri East Annual Conference and the Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District - with the same Bishop and District Superintendent.

The tenets of Methodism appeared in the paper only a few weeks ago by Reverend Joseph H. Wagner, pastor of the First Church. Each church is free to direct the program of the church with the support and leadership in the great Connectional System. They embrace the philosophy that the church as an institution of LOVE, and that each member is called upon to be an agent of peace and good will with a dedicated and devoted life to Christ, the church and community.

Wesley has a thriving Church School, Woman's Society of Christian Service, Methodist Youth Fellowship, and Methodist Men's Club.

Along with these organizations within the church comes the Commissions - Education, Stewardship and Finance, Missions, Christian Social Concerns, and Membership and Evangelism - then there are the Committees - Worship, Music, Communion, Hospital and Homes, Pastoral Relations and etc. All the work of each individual church is channeled through the Official Board and these Commissions and Committees.

Each minister lifts Christ up before his people as the Saviour, Redeemer, and example of devotion and dedication to the cause for which He died, and that this Christ is the Saviour of all mankind, and that all the saved, regardless of denomination, creed, race, or cast are brethern in this Christ.

Wesley Methodist Church expresses thanks to Rev. Floyd Brower, District Superintendent of Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District for his leadership and devotion to Wesley Church and to Rev. Jos. Wagner and the First Methodist Church the many expressions of kindness, gifts, and assistance in leadership. Also the assistance in the new addition which will give floor space - 68 by 34 feet or 2,312 square feet. This addition, which is being built today, will be a great blessing in the promotion of educational, social and general expansion of the church.

Wesley Methodist Church is organized, supported and directed by a large number of young married people, a lovely group of elderly couples, and middle-age people, a host of fine children and a fine youth group. They are all a friendly people and a large welcome is extended to the public.

A. S. Cowan, et. al., vs. T. F. Adams, DAMAGES.

On Motion, defendant is granted until Sept. 26, 1966 to file Responsive Pleadings.

Barbara S. Hitchcock vs. St. Louis-Southwestern R. R. Co., WRONGFUL DEATH.

Josephine D. Cerco vs. S. G. Cerco, DIVORCE.

Parties in Court with their attorney's.
After plaintiff was granted permission to Amen Petition by interlineation and to dismiss Count II. Defendant Willard Lix permitted to re-file Answer. Defendants Dan Hamm Drayage Co., Rob't. Wilshusen and Central Haw. Co., permitted to file answer.
Both parties announce ready for trial, a jury is called, qualified and case taken up, after Judge Craig issued the first instructions.
At the close of the plaintiff's case, defendant's file separate Motion For Director Verdict, which Judge Craig overruled.
The defendants then presented their case, and at it's close they filed a Motion For A Directed verdict, which Judge Craig also overruled.
So at the close of the case, after Judge Craig's final instructions to the jury, the 12 men retired to consider their verdict at 9:28 p.m.
On the same night, at 10:15 p.m. the jury returned to the Courtroom and announced that they had reached a verdict.
"We, the jury find the issues in favor of all defendants."
The $15,000 damages, plus costs asked for by the plaintiff was rejected by the jury.
Jury discharged and verdict ordered filed.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

On Easter Sunday morning, 1939, the Rev. Herman W. Gockel resigned from his church in Evansville, Ind. Due to a throat affliction, it was the end of parish ministry for him. To many it would seem it was the end of his career as a minister. But not to Dr. Gockel, for he was determined to put "religion into everyday words for everyday people." Dr. Gockel's life is a great lesson in faith and courage.

Having always been interested in writing, he was soon in a new kind of ministry through newspaper columns, articles, books and hymns. He worked on the editorial staff of a number of Lutheran publications and helped found the St. Louis Lutheran newspaper in 1945. His zeal for reaching the people led him to TV. Since 1951 he has been the program director of the veteran TV religious dramatic series "This is the Life," now in its 15th year, produced by the Television Productions Board of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Dr. Gockel relinquished one congregation because he couldn't speak only to discover one of the world's largest congregations. Each week "This is the Life" under his spiritual guidance is seen on 375 stations throughout the United States and Canada. It reaches viewers in an increasing number of countries around the world and is carried on 22 overseas stations of the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service.

Pekoe Tea

Pekoe is the Chinese word for "white hair" and formerly was a term applied to young tea leaves covered with a white down. They sometimes scented the leaves with orange blossoms, hence orange pekoe tea.

Area Awaits Cotton Picking

The Sikeston area State Employment service office seasonal labor force is awaiting cotton picking. A search over the area disclosed the bulk of labor is farm residents and families of farm workers and presently not available for out-of-area work.

The farm labor information station and rest camp, route two, served 392 migrants last week. Five were moving north to Wisconsin while eight were returning to Arkansas and 379 were enroute to their home state of Texas.

Cotton picking is getting off to a slow start due to adverse weather conditions throughout the year in the Kennett area. Some ginners have received only three or four bales. Extra heavy foliage will necessitate the use of defoliating chemicals for mechanized cotton pickers to be of much value.

Demand for seasonal farm workers continues to be heavy in the Cape Girardeau area.

Some scattered cotton picking is going on in the Poplar Bluff office area. Local labor is available to harvest this year's crop. There is no surplus labor available for referral.

There is very little farm activity going on in the Caruthersville area. A few bales of cotton have been picked and ginned. Most of the farmers are defoliating the bottom of the cotton plants to prevent loss from boll rot.

No migratory labor will be needed to pick cotton this year. A few workers are being referred to other areas.

Blanton Judges Community Betterment Contest

Blanton, along with Jim Sweney of Slater, and Loren Schneider of Gower, were assigned to the 5,000-10,000 and over 10,000 population categories. The one day was devoted to reviewing scrapbooks submitted for competition and from this reviewing communities were selected for on-site inspections. Communities that Blanton, Schneider and Sweney visited, selected for on-site inspections in the 5,000-10,000 category, were Farmington, Nevada, Perryville and Caruthersville. Selected for on-site inspections in the over-10,000 category were Carthage, Florissant and the Lafayette Area. Results of the judging will be announced at the third annual missouri community betterment conference and awards banquet on Oct. 5-6 in Jefferson City.
